Curacao Returns To Calm

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (AP) — A sullen, tense calm returned to this Caribbean resort Saturday after a day of rioting and looting by 5,000 oil refinery workers, who fought with police and Royal Dutch Marines.

The Netherlands Antilles government said 2 persons were killed, 100 were wounded and 196 arrested in Friday's riots that left many downtown stores in smouldering ruin. Other reports said four were killed.

The governor, N. Debrot, requested 300 more Dutch marines from the Netherlands and these departed immediately. While the rioting had ended, he was said to feel that the Dutch marines and police in this capital were too few to handle another emergency.

About 800 U.S. tourists are on the island and those in Willemstad were mainly confined to their hotels to avoid incidents.

Some Americans said police told them to leave the island because "you look like the Dutch." Curacao's population is 80-90 per cent Negro and the strikers vented their fury on Dutch businesses.

To keep the lid on, officials imposed a 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. curfew.

Police Deputy Inspector K. Van Haren said Communist agitators from outside the island were responsible for the rioting and declared: "One never dreamed it could happen here.

"We all got along well together and there were none of the social pressures, no unemployment or any other friction."

The explosion of violence was triggered by a march on central Willemstad by hundreds of striking petroleum workers who walked off their jobs in sympathy with wage demands of employes of Wescar, a contractor for the Shell Oil Co.

The workers wanted $270 a month, the amount Shell pays its refinery employes in Curacao. The government said the wage disputes had been settled and both strikes were over.

Chain Link Fence Still Around Park

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — "People's Park" was still surrounded by a chain link fence Saturday, an unresolved issue despite protest by thousands of marchers. Its fate now appeared to be up to University of California regents.

National Guardsmen camped inside the fence, unmoved by the 20,000 to 30,000 people, at newsmen's estimate who marched past on Friday, dropping daisies and sod to make symbolic "parklets." Police estimated the number of marchers at 12,000.

Gov. Ronald Reagan said through a spokesman that he was glad the demonstration had been peaceful but that he would not withdraw the troops until local police asked him to.

Reagan ordered 2,000 guardsmen to Berkeley to end the violence that broke out when the university put up the fence last May 15 and police evicted "street people" who had converted the vacant, university-owned property into a park, with sod, flowers and playground equipment.

As protesters prepared for the march, city councilmen voted 5-4 to accept a lease from the university and reopen the property as an experimental park if asked to do so by the regents.

So after weeks of debate and flashes of violence during which one person was killed and 130 injured the issue remains unresolved.

Bradley Will Fly To France

LOS ANGELES (AP) — General of the Army Omar Nelson Bradley, one of the nation's busiest 76-year-olds, will fly to France this week for three days of ceremonies marking the 25th anniversary of D-Day, June 6, 1944.

Leading a delegation of eight U.S. generals invited by the French government, he will commemorate the misty morning when the largest amphibious force in history, directly under his command, hit the beaches of Normandy and opened the way to victory in World War II.

He has been leading a happy, active life of semi-retirment filled with duties and pleasures ranging from chairmanship of a watch company (Buolva) to handicapping horses with professional skill.

On the eve of his departure Sunday for the battleground he helped enshrine in history Bradley said in a rare interview that he is as proud of today's fighting men as he was of those who made up his force of 1.3 million troops-the largest American army ever under one man's command.

"They are beautifully trained," he said, "trained as well as any I have ever known. Their morale is very high-we should be proud of them."

Gen. Bradley, the only living five-star general, said that despite exceptions like Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower military men should stay out of politics.

Five More Czech Liberals Are Purged by Red Party

PRAGUE (AP) — The Czechoslovak Communist party purged noted economist Ota Sik and five other liberals from its central committee Saturday in another major step to silence opposition to pro-Soviet policies.

Five other members of the 190-member central committe, including the head of the Czechoslovak Academy of Science, were reprimanded for breaking party discipline.

The actions were announced in a communique covering the central committee's Friday and Saturday session, its first since the April meeting at which disciplinarian Gustav Husak took over as party leader from Alexander Dubcek, the popular reformer.

No changes were announced in the party's supreme ruling body, the Presidium, to which Dubcek still belongs.

Husak previewed the purge in a televised speech to more than 1,000 party workers at Prague's biggest industrial complex, the CKD works. Organized cheering by old guard Communists in the audience turned the show into a personal triumph for Husak, a tough Slovak who has been accused of lacking support among Communist party faithful in Prague and the Czech part of the country.

Sik, 59, architect of Czechoslovak economic reforms, head of the Higher School of Economics and deputy premier until the Soviet invasion, has been accused by Soviet newspapers of plotting a return to capitalism. The party charged Saturday night that he made statements abroad that damaged state interests and fueled Western propaganda.

Sik, one of the best known Marxist economists in Europe, has spent most of his time doing research in Switzerland since Soviet pressure forced him to resign as deputy premier last September, but he has returned for party meetings.

Premier Oldrich Cernik, who also addressed Saturday's meeting, repudiated Sik's model for socialist production based more on a free market and less on centralized planning. Cernik talked of coordinating Czechoslovak production more slosely with the Soviet economy and, like Husak, pleaded for increased discipline.

Full-Scale US Military Operations Begin Again

SAIGON (AP) — Full-scale allied military operations began Saturday at the end of rival cease-fires for Buddha's birthday, but a U.S. spokesman said contact was light.

A dozen U.S. ground operations of a battalion or larger were under way across South Vietnam. Scores of South Vietnamese ground sweeps were set in motion as the allies strove to blunt any enemy plans for a summer offensive.

The U.S. operations were concentrated along danger points north of Saigon, southward in the Mekong Delta and northward to the A Shay Valley area southwest of Hue.

In the only clash reported, the U.S. Command said American helicopter gunships saw a small enemy force about 75 miles south of Da Nang and raked it with machine-gun fire, killing 11.

The allied and Communist commands traded charges of cease-fire violations even though neither side had agreed to respect the other's truce.

The U.S. Command said the enemy initiated 158 incidents during the allies' 24-hour truce that ended at 6 a.m. Saturday. Of these, 85 were considered significant and resulted in 13 Americans killed and 62 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported in a separate communique that during the 48-hour Viet Cong truce, which overlapped the allied cease-fire, there were 71 enemy-initiated incidents against government forces and civilians, 52 of these during the allied truce.

These 52, which were included in the U.S. total, resulted in four government soldiers, three hamlet officials and five civilians killed.

Viet Cong secret broadcasts and a broadcast by the North Vietnamese radio in Hanoi accused the allies of repeated truce violations, including artillery and bombing attacks.

The U.S. Command reported that Staff Sgt. Kenneth R. Gregorary, 23, of Altus, Okla., was rescued by an American helicopter from the jungles of Tay Ninh Province northwest of Seoul Friday, four days after he "excaped from captivity."

It was about 25 miles from where he was captured in an enemy ambush of an American convoy Aug. 25, 1968.

Taken to the Army's 24th Medical Evacuation Hospital at Long Binh, Gregory was pronounced in good condition by doctors.

See Hard Fight For Nixon Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is far too early to tell how President Nixon will finally fare on his 1969 legislative proposals but many of them clearly are in trouble in the Democratic-controlled Congress.

As the first session of the 91st Congress takes a brief Memorial Day recess, its legislative record so far is one of the most meager of any initial five-month period for many years.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders are quick to point out, however, that this is in large part attributable to the administration itself.

By design the President moved slowly in submitting his program. Some of his proposals have not yet been presented in detailed form.

A major test for Nixon will come in June with expected action by both branches on his plan to extend the 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

GOP leaders insist they are confident Congress will go along but they concede it may be extremely close.

The next major fight, centering in the Senate, could come over the bitterly disputed recommendation for a limited start on an antiballistic missile system. Again an exceedingly close vote is likely unless some compromise is worked out.

A check of key committee chairmen and sponsors of various proposals indicate it is highly dubious as to whether these will be acted on this year:

—A 7 per cent ncrease in Social Security benefits.

—Creation of a self-sustaining corporation to take over the postal system.

—A penny increase in the letter stamp to 7 cents.

—Revision of the draft laws to establish a lottery system and take younger registrants first.

—A system of tax credits to encourage industry to enter ghetto areas and hire the hard-core unemployed. A high administration official conceded privately last week it is proving difficult even to draft such legislation.

—Far-reaching airways and mass transit development systems. So far the Transportation Department has come up with no specifics on these.

Thieu Warns Against Concessions, Coalitions

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Just before a meeting with President Nixon, President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam Saturday night pointed to China as an example of "undue concessions" leading to a Communist takeover.

In a speech at a banquet given by President Chiang Kai-shek, the visiting president also warned of coalitions with the Communists.

Thieu meets Nixon at Midway Island June 8, and his speech appeared to be a warning to the United States against concessions to the Viet Cong and North Vietnam at the Paris peace talks. Thieu fears the United States may suggest a coalition with the Viet Cong, and he declared in South Korea Friday he never would accept such a solution.

Thieu said Chiang, as the leader of Nationalist China, was "realistically aware that the solution to the Chinese civil war in the late 1940s was not the formula of a coalition government with the Communists or an integrated army with them."

During the civil war, Mao Tse-tung suggested both ideas, and the United States supported a coalition.

"The Communists," Thieu continued, "therefore were unable to take over the mainland by the smooth device of subversion from within and had to resort to brutal force.

Memorial Ceremony Set For D. Kelly Scruton

A memorial and flag-dedicating ceremony will be held for the late D. Kelly Scruton in conjunction with the opening of the 1969 Babe Ruth season, Monday night at Liberty Park stadium.

Representatives from the Sedalia Business and Professional Women's Club, Little League, American Legion and the VFW will participate in the program starting at 6:15 p.m.

Mrs. John W. Welch of the BPWC contacted Sen. Stuart Symington in Washington, D. C. and obtained an American flag that had flown over the Capitol.

Symington replied, "Iwish I could be with you when you honor him with the presentation of the flag I have included, which has flown over the Capitol but my schedule will not permit it."

Many local officials are expected to take part in the presentation as well as the groups mentioned.

Injured Woman Still Critical In Columbia

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A woman brought to the University of Missouri Medical Center after a traffic accident Friday night remained in critical condition today and her 19-month-old child was listed in fair condition.

The hospital said Mrs. Janice Milham, 27, was admitted unconscious with fractures of the nose and severe facial lacerations and other injuries.

The child, Tracy, had fractured of both arms, head injuries and lacerations on her head and body.

The collision occured on M5 just south of M52 near Versailles.

The Highway Patrol said the car driven by the woman collided with another driven by Bob Dean Sumner, 26. He was killed and his brother, Donald Leroy Sumner, 25, of Camdenton, was injured.

The medical center listed the woman's husband as Dr. J. L. Milham of Camdenton, Mo.

Defend Bomber Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, stripping away a secrecy label on information provided a critical Senate Democrat, has defended plans for a new manned bomber but says there is no commitment to build the new warplane.

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin made public the report Saturday after it was declassified by the Pentagon. The senator had returned the report unopened earlier when it was delivered to him as a classified document.

Proxmire asked Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird on April 7 whether a request for $23 million in bomber development funds signaled a commitment to build and deploy the planes, called the advanced manned strategic aircraft—AMSA.

Proxmire said he understood the Air Force wants to build 240 of the planes at a cost he estimates at $50 million each.

"I believe it prudent to initiate development of such a system at this time," John S. Foster Jr., the defense research chief, said in the Pentagon reply.

"I would hasten to point out that our proposal to start development on AMSA in no way implies a decision now to produce or deploy the system."

Foster said a decision on production can be delayed until uncertainties about the useful life of B52 bombers—and about the security needs of the nation—are more fully resolved.

He said the program now proposed by the Pentagon would extend through design and flight-testing of several experimental airplanes.

"I will seek additional guarantees from the Pentagon that the Air Force will not move into production until Congress has specifically agreed to that action," Proxmire said.

Foster said the 240 aircraft Proxmire mentioned "should be considered as the upper limit of the procurement and represents the number of AMSA airplanes necessary to duplicate the task performed today by our B52 fleet.

French To Polls Sunday

PARIS (AP) — France votes for a president Sunday after a campaign which ended with two bomb blasts and a report that interim President Alain Poher has lost ground in the race to succeed Charles de Gaulle.

About 28 million Frenchmen will cast ballots Sunday but they are not expected to give a majority to any of the seven candidates. A runoff would then be required June 15 between the first two finishers.

A poll published Saturday afternoon by France-Soir, the nation's largest newspaper, gave Georges Pompidou, De Gaulle's former premier, 41 per cent of the vote.

Poher, the Senate president who became chief of state April 28 when De Gaulle resigned, had dropped to 25 per cent. It was the fourth straight poll in which his total had decreased, indicating perhaps that Poher's novelty and freshness were growing stale.

The interim president's political headquarters was jarred earlier in the day when a street sweeper accidentally set off a bomb left on the sidewalk about 30 feet from the campaign center.

Says Spending Priorities Are Distorted

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — U.S. Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton said Saturday night it is time for Congress to be more responsible in setting priorities on spending.

He said spending priorities have been grossly distorted by congressional willingness to accede to Pentagon demands.

Congress has the power to insist on better military procurement practices and "most importantly, Congress can question some of the assumptions which govern foreign policy and dictate national security needs.

"For instance, why is a standing army of over 3.5 million men — the largest in the world—necessary?"

Eagleton said he did not regard the need as obvious and added:

"The Congress has the power to raise armies. It has the responsibility to authorize and appropriate the expenditures of federal revenue. In so doing it can set national priorities and channel national resources toward national goals.

"It is time we started exercising that responsibility in a responsible manner."

College Head Would Trade

College Education for National Service

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The president of Notre Dame suggested Saturday the government assure college education to all citizens in return for a year of national service.

The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh said a program allowing "the widest interpretation of service" was needed as an alternative to the draft and to give youth "a means to take their idealism seriously, an opportunity to practice generosity in good causes, and a legitimate and meaningful participation in a society they want to improve."

The Catholic educator, known for his hard line stand on campus demonstrations, outlined a national service program in commencement remarks at St. Louis University.

In return for federal assistance to students able and willing to do college work, Father Hesburgh said:

"Allow the student to pick the time, the place, and the condition of his service to others, here or abroad.

"Allow it in existing government programs, such as the Peace Corps or VISTA, in secular or religious groups, in the inner city or Appalacia, or in the university itself."

Father Hesburgh said the option of national service could be substituted for the student's military obligation.

"The nation now has unusual domestic and international human obligations, many of which can only be met by generous voluntary service outside the military context," the priest said. "Young people would like a real option for service, even in a nation that spends over $70 billion for the military and less than $2 billion of human development all over the world."

The treadmill of present day education, he said, has left present day students open "to myriad forms of escapism and often useless activism. A period of national service would "teach them that there are no instant answers to the agonies of our times, but that personal commitment, competence and real service are at the beginning and at the heart of all social reconstruction."

Father Hesburgh also suggested persons over 18 be given the vote to improve the quality of political leadership and promote responsible political participation by young people.

"If they are old enough to serve and die for their country, they are old enough to participate in choosing its leadership."

Sees No Stigma In Business Career

MARSHALL, Mo. (AP) — A railway president told 178 graduates at Missouri Valley College Saturday night "there is no stigma attached to electing a career in the world of business or seeking a profit."

Louis W. Menk, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, said "no one can deny the need for talented, well-educated people in government and social service and other non-business fields. But talented and educated people are needed in our business society too."

Woman is Killed

CARMA, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Martha Holmes, 86, was killed Saturday when she stepped in front of a passing car in front of her home on Rural Route D, one mile west of Carma.

The driver of the car was not held.

Bichsel's Jewelry Co. Sold to C. W. Flower

C. W. Flower Co., became the owner of Bichsel's Jewelry Co., 217 South Ohio, effective with the opening of business yesterday, according to C. D. Hieronymus, president of Flower's.

Bichsel's, one of the oldest firms in Sedalia, was established in 1865, 39 years before the founding of the C. W. Flower Drygoods Co., here.

The only changes presently considered according to Hieronymus, involve an opening in a wall to connect the two firms.

The firm was founded here more or less by chance after George Bichsel, a watchmaker from Switzerland, arrived in America and decided he'd take a train and go as far west as possible.

That brought him to Sedalia and he first set up shop in the old W. E. Bard Drug Co., around 1865, on Main Street. His family came to the United States about three years later.

As time progressed, the firm was managed by Bichsel's sons, George Jr., and Emile, and was known as Bichsel Brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Heiss acquired their interest in the firm 23 years ago.

Bichsel's will retain its name and will be operated as a division of Flower's, Hieronymus said, adding that no changes in staff are being considered for Bichsel's.

The jewelry store has been owned by Mr. and Mrs. John L. Heiss, Jr., principal stockholders, for over 20 years.

Bichsel's most famous feature is the huge post clock facing Ohio Street, installed over 54 years ago.

As a division of Flower's, the jewelry store's deliveries and billing will be handled by Flower's, Hieronymus reported.

He said the store would continue to carry the same line of merchandise it has in the past, ranging from quality jewelry to china.

The transaction does not include the building in which Bichsel's is located, Hieronymus said. The building is owned by a third party who has no connection with Flower's or Bichsel's, it was reported.

According to Hieronymus, Mr. and Mrs. Heiss have indicated they will remain active in the business for some time.

Courts Give Italy's Women New Status

ROME (AP) — After centuries of subservience to the male, Italian women are beginning to win a new equality from the nation's courts. They have a long way to go, however, and they are paying a price for their new status.

Paradoxically, while winning new liberties, statistics show more Italian women are beginning to like the old idea that their place is in the home.

This is still a man's world, 20 years after Italy's postwar constitution guaranteed that all citizens would be equal. In practice that guarantee has not applied to women.

Says actress Virna Lisi, married and a mother of a son: "In the last few years women have achieved big victories in Italy in various fields, but what is left to be done is much more. The woman here must still fight for a very basic goal—liberty, full liberty. In all the world, women are free, except in Italy one can say."

Who prevents them from being free?

"The men, obviously, the men," Miss Lisi says. "You must change Italian men to achieve freedom for Italian women. Italian males are gradually being forced to yield by the changing world, by advancing women.

"Still there can be a risk in this. Liberty must be granted little by little. If given too much liberty at once, the Italian woman, who is not accustomed to liberty, can make mistakes."

The nation's highest courts have handed down a series of decisions in the past few months which are ripping down the laws and social practices which have made man the lord and master of his home and family.

The new rulings upholding equality have not all been to the advantage of women, however.

The Court of Cassation—Italy's Supreme Court—has just held that work contracts are illegal if they give women pensions at 55 while men must work to 60. The ruling meant that women must wait until 60 for pensions, the same as men.

Ten cases have been brought before the Constitutional Court asking that wives responsible for their family's breakup be required to help support a needy husband.

Other decisions have been more to the woman's advantage.

Last Dec. 19 the Constitutional Court reversed its own decision of seven years ago and ruled that what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander in the case of adulterous husbands and wives.

That was a clamorous decision in Italian justice. It held unconstitutional a clause of the law that a wife could be sent to jail for a year for a single case of adultery, whereas the husband was punished only if he lived in continued and open concubinage.

When that ruling was handed down it wiped 500 cases against wives off the court dockets in Milan alone.

In another recent ruling, the Supreme Court held that a woman employe could not be dismissed because of marriage. The court also held illegal work contracts that required employes to be unmarried.

One factor attributed widely with keeping the wife "under control" is the fact that Italy has no legal divorce.

Law and Order Ladies

The emancipation of women in Italy is under way, although the traditions of male superiority die hard. New laws and court rulings lead the way; their example is not only in theory. Above, the first woman magistrate in Italy, Maria Teresa Fontana, at work in court in Rome. Below, five candidates for the new job of female police inspector in Rome (they all have degrees in law). (AP)

This, too, may be changed, and possibly soon.

A dozen postwar divorce bills failed even to get action in parliamentary committee. But now a divorce law is moving through committee with majority support and appears to have a good chance of passage in the present legislature.

Regarding the feminist struggle, actress Claudia Cardinale believes "women here are still far from having achieved real equality of rights with men. I'm a woman and therefore a convinced feminist who thinks women must fight for full legal and social equality.

"Equality, however, does not mean identity of tasks between men and women. Certain tasks are too obviously different. ...

"I think one cay say that the perfect formula for emancipation should be: may woman be worth as much as man in a world where the woman is fully a woman and the man fully a man."

In the postwar years, as old traditions collapsed, women flooded into jobs in industry, business and civil service.

But after the first few years, the rush eased off and the trend began to reverse.

From almost seven million women employed in 1957, the number dropped to five million in 1968.

The biggest drop—41 per cent of the total—was among women who had been working on farms. They dropped out of employment in the massive shift of rural population to the cities.

But even in factories, shops and government offices, the number of women workers declined as women found that the job of housewife filled their day.

The rapidly diminishing number of domestic servants gave women of the middle-class families a job to do at home. And the work- saving devices of modern housekeeping, the pleasures of a family car, and changing social attitude toward the dignity of the housewife made housework more pleasant.

Above the factory and shop work level, however, women are finding a bright new future.

Twenty-six women have seats in Parliament—17 in the Chamber of Deputies and nine in the Senate. One undersecretary in Premier Mariano Rumor's Cabinet is a woman.

But this does not mean that women are taking over command in this Latin land of ancient inhibitions.

Only five out of 100 women in public administration have a directing or administrative position.

In industry, employers say, most women object to working under another woman.

Half a dozen towns now have women mayors—but they are very small towns.

Women were admitted recently for the first time as judges—but only in lower courts.

Only last year Italy got its first lady railway stationmasters--seven of them.

There have been proposals that the army, navy and air force form a volunteer women's corps. This idea fizzled after Rome fashion designers came out with a series of fanciful sketches suggesting what the uniforms might look like.

Ann Landers

An Inventory Of Mate's Qualities

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you suggested that when a woman gets fed up with her husband she should sit down with a pen and a sheet of paper and divide the paper into two columns. In one column she should list her husband's desirable qualities. In the other column she should list his undesirable qualities. I did this last night and it worked wonders. Here's the way it added up:

Undesirable qualities: Hates to visit my relatives; does so only under pressure; never remembers birthdays or anniversaries; loathes Christmas and claims Mother's Day is a racket; insists on watching his favorite programs on TV. (To heck with mine.); stubborn about admitting it when he is wrong.

Admirable Qualities: Faithful to me 100 per cent — never looks at other women or goes anywhere without me; personal habits — excellent, very neat; makes a good living; steady worker; eats everything I cook and compliments me; doesn't gamble or smoke; not exactly a Richard Burton in the bedroom but plenty good enough.

Yesterday when I came home from bridge club and listened to the girls gripe about their husbands, I took out my list and felt lucky. Sign me — Sunny Skies

Dear Sunny: Cheers! I hope others will take inventory when they get fed up. On balance, I'll bet they'll find more to be happy about than they thought was there.

Dear Ann Landers: I married a farmer and we worked shoulder to shoulder for 40 years. This is the way my mother did and I felt it was only right that a wife be a partner and help her husband in every way.

It was hard work but our farm did well. We saved our money and bought the adjoining property on both sides. All the while we raised a family, educated our children and tried to be good parents.

Two years ago my husband died at the age of 66. I am 63. Our children are married and have homes of their own. Not one of the children has any interest in helping me run the farm, yet they all screamed like eagles when I told them I was tired and seriously considering an offer to sell.

The children are sentimental about the farm, Ann, and I can understand their feelings, but I'm tired. Please tell me what to do. I'll look in the Hutchinson News for your advice and I'll follow it. — Farm Widow

Dear Widow: The children's sentimentality is not a good enough reason to keep a tired widow in the harness after 40 years of hard work. Tell the kids you are selling the farm so you can enjoy the fruits of your labors. Then do it.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

City Sticker Deadline Is Extended

About 5,000 passenger vehicle city license stickers have been issued so far and the deadline for purchase of the stickers has been extended to June 14, according to Mrs. Frank Hugelman, city collector.

Sales so far are running ahead of last year, she said, but a percentage figure was not available. The city collector's office remained open until noon Saturday to accommodate residents who felt the deadline was Monday, she said.

All persons who fail to purchase the sticker, or fail to display it after purchase, are subject to fine, Mrs. Hugelman said.

The cost of the city stickers is based on the horsepower of passenger vehicles, while cost of the sticker, a form of tax, for trucks is based on tonnage.

LONDON (AP) — Loughbough University now offers a masters degree for professional recreation directors to help people who don't know how to manabe their leisure time.

See Higher Cost For Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Bureau of the Budget task force has estimated it would cost $2.9 billion more than the government is now spending on food programs to assure an adequate diet for the poor.

This is far more than President Nixon's recommendation of a $270 million boost in the food stamp program for the coming fiscal year and a $1 billion increase the following year.

The task force analysis said spending on food programs, now about $1.5 billion a year, including $340 million spent on food stamps, would have to be almost tripled by adding another $2.9 billion in some form.

The figures, presented as a working draft designed as "a point of departure for discussion and improvement," were part of a six-month study by an interdepartmental Budget Bureau group for the Urban Affairs Council.

It was pegged to statistics showing that some 20.8 million Americans are below the poverty line, defined as slightly more than $3,000 income a year for an urban family of four.

The working draft was dated May 6, the same day Nixon submitted his special hunger message to Congress.

The draft contains several proposed changes for federal food programs but said:

"No claim is made that the list is either exhaustive, original, or in any way competes with the President's program."

The proposed changes include putting food stamp payments on the installment plan, establishing emergency loan programs to help the poor pay for stamps, and establishing standards to insure "that all poverty families are eligible."

Further, it suggests introduction of the commodity distribution program "at least on an interim basis, into the 480 counties and cities now without a food program" and use of federal funds to help states extend food programs into new areas.

Speaking broadly, the task force said: "standardization of welfare payments, federal cash grants or child allowances should be used to increase people's ability to purchase food."

Looking to the future, the task force said:

"If progress in reducing the number of poor were to take place at the same pace in the future as it has in the recent past, poverty (as presently defined) would be eliminated entirely by 1983.

"But this is probably an overly optimistic prediction."

Small Tornado Suspected In Damage

SWEET SPRINGS — What is believed to have been a small tornado caused damage at the Werner Hermerding farm just north of here on Highway 127 early Saturday morning.

The winds, which struck shortly after 4 a.m., demolished an aluminum shed valued at $1,000, uprooted a large hedge tree, snapped large tree limbs and deposited a wheebarrow and strand of wire in the middle of an alfalfa field.

Six-Foot Wall No Problem for Thieves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Burglars broke through a six-foot wall and peeled a safe to steal $16,000 from the Cass Federal Savings and Loan Association in St. Louis, police said Saturday.

The loss was discovered Saturday morning.

Police said the door of a neighboring business establishment had been forced and the burglars then broke through a common wall.

COCKROACHES CAN CAUSE ASTHMA

Two Washington allergists have reported that cockroaches are an important cause of asthma in humans. Food contaminated by cockraoches triggers an allergic reaction to persons already sensitized to the insects, or who are allergy-prone, although not yet exposed.

Recent tests showed that almost 50% of a group of persons exposed to cockroach-infested food had asthma. We have positive cockroach killers.

Accidents

A 1968 Pontiac driven west on Broadway by Bonnie V. Danley, 25, Altoona, Iowa, and a 1966 Cadillac driven east on Broadway by John W. Bradshaw, 47, University City, were involved in an accident at Broadway and Stewart at 10:32 a.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Danley was issued a police summons for careless and imprudent driving.

A 1966 Fairlane driven east on 15th by Jerry Lee Pottorff, 24, Route 1, and a parked 1962 Chevrolet owned by Robert Thompson, 1423 South Moniteau, were involved in an accident at 1423 South Moniteau at 4:49 p.m. Thursday.

Pottorff was issued a police summons for careless and imprudent driving.

A two-car accident occurred in the 700 block of South Limit at 4:55 p.m. Friday.

Involved were a 1964 Oldsmobile driven north on Limit by Terrance Robert Koehn, 20, 37 Hunting Drive, and a 1957 Chevrolet driven north on Limit by Lewis W. Miller, 23, Columbia. The police report indicated that Koehn's vehicle was stopped when the accident occurred.

The rear of the Oldsmobile and the front of the Chevrolet were damaged.

Three persons were injured in a one-car accident one mile east of LaMonte on Highway 50 about 6:25 p.m. Saturday.

Taken to Bothwell Hospital by the Sedalia Ambulance Service were Bertha Emily Kessner, 62, Route 2, the driver of a westbound 1965 Buick; Henry Elmo Whitehead, 68, 423 East Broadway, a brother of the driver; and Gary Fred Kessner, 21, Route 2, son of the driver.

According to the Highway Patrol Mrs. Kessner's auto left the roadway on the north side, climbing an embankment before coming to rest. Mrs. Kessner reportedly locked her brakes and the car started skidding when she maneuvered to keep from colliding with a car which pulled off a side road into her path.

Mrs. Kessner sustained fractured ribs and was admitted to the hospital. Whitehead and Gary Kessner both complained of back injuries.

Kathleen Louise Parks, 19, 2201 South Kentucky a passenger in the car, was not injured.

Paul's wrecker towed the car from the scene.

Sues After Exam

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese student who failed an entrance examination to Waseda University filed law suit against school authorities demanding $1,300. Takeshi Ito, 19, claimed he suffered a "mental blow" from unfair examinations.

What are "Death Taxes"?

Answer

Inheritance, succession, transfer and estate taxes as well as any other taxes levied against the estate of a deceased person are known as "Death Taxes."

The liability for the payment of these taxes rests with the estate of the decedent. Under the State Inheritance Tax and the Federal Estate Tax laws those who succeed to the ownership of property subject to these taxes must satisfy any tax liability involved with property.

Under certain circumstances funeral costs are deductible from "Death Taxes." In computing the taxable value of an estate transferred by will or intestate laws the cost of the funeral and interment expenses are entirely deductible. The cost of a cemetery monument is deductible. The cost of a cemetery monument is deductible within certain limitations. Funeral costs are not usually deductible from jointly held property.

Hear Talk On Cock Fighting

Cock-fighting is the oldest sport known to civilized man, Chuck Williams told members of the Optimist Club Tuesday noon at State Fair Restaurant in his talk on this sport. It began in Southeast Asia, he stated, and is mentioned in the Bible.

From the Middle East the Romans took it over and then the sport spread to England. It was brought to Colonial America and the fighting cock came within two votes of being the national bird instead of the eagle, Williams said.

George Washington was interested in cock-fighting, Williams told the group, as was Thomas Jefferson. Abe Lincoln didn't own cocks nor participate, but he was often used as a referee because of his honesty, he said.

In some states cock-fighting is illegal; Williams commented and Missouri is one of them, but the sport is popular all over the world. In the Philippines it is the national game. The coliseum for only cock fights seats 30,000. Almost all the cocks are imported from the United States because the climate there is not suitable to raising them.

It matters not the status of the person who owns a cock, Williams said, a millionaire owning a cock could have it mated to a cock belonging to a coal miner. It is the weight of the cocks, that is crucial — they must weigh within two ounces of each other. The referee must be a person of high integrity and they receive good pay because their decision could mean thousands of dollars.

One state where cock-fighting is allowed, Williams said, is Kansas. He displayed different kinds of artificial spurs used, some from other countries. A cock, he explained, can't be forced to fight, they do it instinctively when they see another cock that they can get to. The best year for a cock is when it is two years old but they are used to fight as long as they live.

The money is made through betting on them.

When anyone asks if he doesn't consider it a cruel sport, Williams said, he always answers in the affirmative, but so is fishing, with the hook in the fish which is then left to smother; hunting, where an animal is wounded and goes off with its wounds, often to die, and other sports. He quickly added that he was not against hunting and fishing, he liked to do both, but they, too, are cruel sports.

The meeting was presided over by the Rev. Charles Hendrickson, president, and invocation was by Lee Deason.

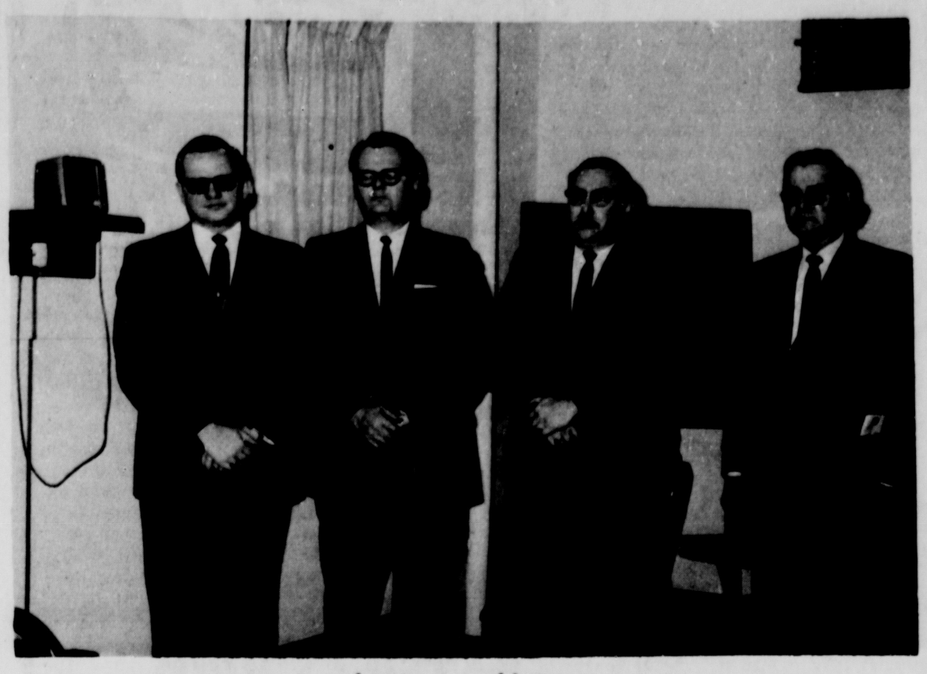
Law Seminar Spans Distance



Laywers Listen

In most cases lawyers do the talking, but here they listen. The occasion is a lecture during an "Annual Survey of the Law" seminar conducted by the University of Missouri-Kansas City, broadcast by UMKC and received in the conference room at Bothwell Hospital by the loudspeaker at left. Attending the conference were, left to right, Adam Fischer, J. R. Fritz and Henry Keeler, Sedalia attorneys, and Job Harned, probate judge. Keeler is prosecuting attorney and Fischer is city attorney. (Democrat-Capital Photo).

Four Sedalia attorneys participated in an "annual survey of the law" seminar by telephone at Bothwell Hospital two days this week.

Using a closed circuit telephone system of the University of Missouri-Columbia, Medical Center, Adam Fischer, Henry Keeler, Job Harned and J.R. Fritz joined attorneys in 15 other Missouri cities in the seminar.

The program was conducted by the Law Center at the University of Missouri-Kansas City, in co-operation with the Medical Center, which maintains the system in 15 Missouri hospitals as part of the extension medical program.

Co-ordinating the program locally were Don Feeback, administrator at Bothwell Hospital; Fischer and Bill Rader, area continuing education programmer.

The attorneys heard lectures from six different professors at the Law Center. Their discussions included torts, procedure, evidence, estates and trusts, business organizations and commercial transactions. A question and answer period followed each of these presentations.

Fischer, chairman of the Pettis County Bar Association, called the telephone seminar "an effective means of carrying out educational programs that shows promise as a means of obtaining top resource people in adult education programs."

'Freedom Torch' Dedication Held

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va. (AP) — This community of 1,850 dedicated a "freedom torch" Friday that was designed and built by an Italian immigrant who has lived here since 1923.

The torch—built of stone and capped with a gas torch like the "Eternal Flame" memorializing the late President John F. Kennedy—was built by D. B. Vaglio, 71.

Vaglio served with the Italian army in World War I and was a prisoner of war for two years. He came to the United States in 1921 and moved to Fayetteville two years later.

Liver Transplant Or Death For Baby

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) — Jeff Bennett is 13 months old, but doctors say he has only a few weeks more to live unless he receives a liver transplant.

He was born with a polycystic liver, a rare condition that causes massive swelling of the body

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Bennett, await word from a Denver hospital where a transplant could take place, but they are told there is a long waiting list and a shortage of donors.

Will Get Degrees At William Jewell

James Wallace Woods, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Woods, 612 South Park, is one of 39 students scheduled to receive a bachelor of science degree from William Jewell College, Liberty, on Monday.

Lynne Moss York, Tipton, will also receive a B.S. degree. Other area students include:

Candidates for bachelor of arts degrees: Martin G. Barb, Warsaw; Sam W. Gilliam, Slater; James Richard Williams, Green Ridge; and Robert Kelly York, California.

Former Mayor Has His Pocket Picked

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Mayor Robert F. Wagner has met with an unexpected campaign expense.

Wagner, like the other four candidates for the Democratic nomination for mayor, spent Memorial Day campaigning. He doffed his jacket and tie and dove into crowds of handshakers at Coney Island and Brighton Beach.

But when the day was over, he discovered a gold clip with a St. Christopher's medal, along with $35 attached, were missing from his right-hand trouser pocket.

An aide said Wagner would like to have the medal back.

Green received the Curator's Award at MU, the same honor Thomas is eligible for.

'People's Park' Future Still Remains in Doubt

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — "It was beautiful," a smiling, bearded young man said after about 15,000 persons had conducted a nonviolent march supporting the controversial "people's park."

But the future of the fenced-in three acres of property owned by the University of California at Berkeley remained in doubt.

Friday's march through downtown Berkeley covered a four-mile circular route and involved thousands of demonstrators, some 2,000 National Guardsmen and hundreds of police, sheriff's deputies and California highway patrolmen.

Thousands of white and yellow daisies were distributed to marchers. Many of the flowers wound up in the fence of the disputed park and in a barbed wire barricade.

One young man walked up to a policeman and handed him a flower saying, "I want to lay a flower on you." A National Guardsman, standing with fixed bayonet at an intersection, stood unmoving as an attractive young girl kissed him and stuck a flower in his jacket.

A flatbed truck carrying a rock band and dancing girls stopped near the fence and two young girls stripped to the waist to perform for guardsmen and spectators, who stood amid an impromptu "park" of plants and grass installed on the street pavement.

The demonstrators cleaned up the street litter when it was over.

No violence was reported.

Two young men were arrested —one a teen-age runaway and the other a demonstrator who disrobed.

Marchers were demanding that the fence be torn down, that guardsmen be removed and the park returned to the young people who built it—planted trees, shrubs and grass and installed children's playground equipment.

UC Chancellor Roger W. Heyns said Thursday he believed the ultimate solution to the controversy was for the City of Berkeley to lease the property for a park.

City councilmen voted 5-4 Thursday to express their willingness to lease the property, if the university regents ask them to do so.

The controversy began last month when residents near the property, some students and others not, began developing a park on the lot without university permission.

On May 15, police, at Heyns' request, evicted some 75 persons from the lot. Workmen erected the fence.

After a rally, protesters marched to the park and threw rocks, bottles and metal bars at police and deputies. The officers answered with shotgun blasts and tear gas.

About 130 persons were injured, some by clubs and some by birdshot and double-o u g h t b u c k s h o t. One, nonstudent James Rector, 25, died. Another may lose his sight.

Council Officers Chosen

Sacred Heart High School student council officers for 1969-70 were recently elected.

Richard Bahner, son of Mrs. Hugo Bahner, 1611 West 16th, was elected president. Bahner, a junior, was also recently chosen to attend Missouri Boys State at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg.

Vice-president-elect is Ed Marino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marino, 408 West Fourth. He is active in sports and is a member of the letterman's club.

Secretary for the coming year will be Pam Koetting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Koetting, 1024 South Merriam. She is also newly-elected president of the Sacred Heart Mizpah.

Debbie Eckhoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V.B. Eckhoff, 1215 South Barrett, is the new treasurer. She will be the only junior on the executive board.

In charge of publicity will be Carol Cooney, 1108 West Broadway and Rita Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fischer, 3016 East 12th. Both are active in Mizpah, student council, volleyball and letterman's club.

Japanese Outgrow Their Own Houses

TOKYO (AP) — Average Japanese bigger than average Americans?

It could happen some day, says one Japanese scientist. Meanwhile, Japanese children are outgrowing their school desks, and houses may have to be remodeled with higher ceilings and doorways.

The Japanese are growing markedly taller and heavier each year, apparently because of a switch from traditional Japanese dishes based on rice to Western-type diets composed of more fat and dairy products.

A Japanese nutrition specialist said: "The difference of height between an average American and Japanese will be gradually reduced."

"It may be in the not so distant future the Japanese would possibly surpass the Americans in their physical measurements," said Dr. Shinkichi Nagamine of the National Institute of Nutrition, run by the Ministry of Health and Welfare.

The average American stands 5-feet-9½ inches, about 3.9 inches taller than the average Japanese.

Nagamine said the dietary change as well as the sharp rise in Japanese living standards undoubtedly have contributed to the remarkable physical growth in post war Japan.

The impressive physical changes are particularly remarkable in younger generations.

In primary and junior high schools, children have outgrown their desks and chairs, officials at the Ministry of Education reported, and the ministry had to revise standards for classroom furniture.

A ministry survey showed the average height of 11-year-old boys has increased by 4.6 inches over the past 68 years.

Girls of the same age had an increase 5.4 inches.

During the 1900-1968 period, the 11-year-old boys gained 13.6 pounds and the girls 18.9 pounds in weight, the survey said.

For 14-year-old boys the average increase in height was 4.95 inches during the same period.

Officials said the growth rate was especially bigger in the last two decades, during which most of the deprivations of World War II had been ameliorated or eliminated completely.

"Today," they said, "it is common for 14-or 15-year-old children to be taller than their parents."

Officials said rice is called a staple food for 1.8 billion people in Asia, but in Japan more people are eating or drinking such foods as bread, butter, cornflakes, eggs, meat and milk.

"It's not too much to say that almost every Japanese home has no rice on the breakfast menu today," they stated.

The tendency for younger Japanese to prefer no-rice diets could be attributed partly to a school lunch system adopted in 1947.

The school lunches are served at primary schools throughout this country. They began with powdered milk, flour and canned foods released by the allied occupation forces to save the hungry children in defeated Japan from malnutrition.

Pride is Generated By New Art Center

OTTAWA (AP) — "Ah, it's bound to be a great success," the airport driver decided, "because there'll be 10 places in it for a man to buy the wine and liquor."

"Or it could be a silo for great future cows," a dignified rider suggested.

There seem almost as many good-natured jests around as visitors for this week's gala inaugural of Canada's long-awaited National Arts Center.

But evident along with the raillery is pride in creation of a $46.5-million enterprise. Washington's planned citadel of culture is several years and several $10 millions more from realization.

The public has its first opportunity May 31 5o meander on previous through the massive reinforced concrete structure that incorporates a 2,372-seat opera house, an 800-seat theater, and 300-seat experimental studio.

The complex includes also three restaurants, two bookshops, a record shop, 900-car underground garage and the aforementioned oases of refreshment.

Down a hill from the vaguely Norman-Danish style of this capital's hotels and houses of Parliament, the new edifice crouches within its 6½-acre enclave like an unexpected monster of the past. Brutalized modern architecture is in mode, so there are curbstone comments about "that bomb shelter" or its conceivable utility as some sort of electronic-era fortress.

The formal premiere festivities begin June 2 and continued two weeks with a cavalcade of performances by the National Ballet Company, Montreal's Theatre du Nouvea Monde, multimedia bursts and chamber music recitals.

The event of events is to be presentation of "Kraanerg," a new full-length ballet by Roland Petit that has been rehearsed amig great secrecy behind the dusty facade of an old auditorium in Toronto.

"We want," explains Petit, "to show how men will try to achieve perfection in the future." In a rare display of ecumenical collaboration, the sets are by Vassarely, a Hungarian artist, and the score which will be partly peformed by instruments and partly by a tape recorder is by the modernist Greek composer, Iannis Xenakis.

The title comes from the Greek words aan .neaning "to realize oneself," and erg meaning "energy."

The emphasis in permanent programming will be on Canadian artistic accomplishment.

After a summer array of guest performers—the only one so far announced is Harry Belafonte—the center plans three subscription series. In addition to visits by the Montreal and Toronto symphonies, and a new National Arts Center orchestra, there will be sustained dance and opera programs, and two resident drama companies.

These are the Stratford, Ont., Festival company and Theatre du Capricorne, Canada's first professional French language troupe outside Quebec.

Since this is a dual-language nation, all performance facilities are equipped with instant-translation devices. Decor includes rock-crystal sculptures and a pair of three-ton cast aluminum doors for the salon that can be pivoted about by a firm finger push.

Creation of the center has been a six-year project. It was begun by an alliance of private organizations, then envisioned by former Prime Minister Lester Pearson as part of the 1967 Centennial.

Operation of the facilities is entrusted to a corporation created by Parliament and responsible to it.

The operating budget of federal funds is $2.5 million annually. The big unanswered question now is how much public subscription support can be developed for the long run.

Culture Capital

A new National Arts Center in Ottawa, Canada's capital, formally opens this June. It's a tribute to the country's respect for the arts; the cost of the building alone represents an investment in culture of $2.30 for every merchant, miner, fisherman, housewife and moppet of the population. The Center, seen here in the foreground, comprises an opera house (left), theater (center), and an experimental studio (right). Ottawa's Parliament buildings and Ottawa River are seen in the background. (AP)

Agnew Says U.S. Must 'Stand Firm'

WASHINGTON (AP) — After placing a presidential wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Friday, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told a sparse Memorial Day crowd that the United States must stand firm in Vietnam.

"A challenge conquered sooner—for all its sacrifices—proves far less costly," he said.

Agnew said of the 149,000 dead buried in Arlington National Cemetery, "All of them lived and fought and were willing to die for freedom. We can do no less."

Beta Tau Chapter Meets at SFCC

Beta Tau Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, met at State Fair Community College Thursday evening.

Mrs. Virginia Harms was in charge of a program on art and presented William Smith, dramatics instructor at Smith-Cotton High School. Smith introduced members of the Drama Club who delighted their audience with a cut-down version of "Music Man."

The cast included Belinda Blackman, Doug Charles, Mike Fiene, Marilyn Gibson, Martha Gibson, Cynthia Hopkins, Maggie Hurtt, Richard Kinshella, Kevin West and Pat Worley, with Beth Belt as piano accompanist.

Mrs. Geraldine Schrader was guest.

Mrs. Shirley White, president, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Carol Rabourn, ways and means chairman, announced plans for a bake sale which was May 24 at Thompson Hills Shopping Center.

All chapter members voted to contribute their part of the $150 scholarship to State Fair Community College.

Mrs. Shirley Lathrop was voted Girl of the Year.

Mrs. Jan Spradling, who is moving to Liberty, was presented a farewell gift.

Sorority Members Entertain Mothers

Members of Beta Tau Chapter entertained their mothers recently at Flat Creek Inn.

Attending were Mrs. Dixie Anderson and her mother, Mrs. Lucille Goldsmith; Mrs. Sue Broaddus and her mother, Mrs. Ruby Thompson; Mrs. Deanna Franklin and her mother, Mrs. Josephine Burton, and Mrs. Judy Meyer and her mother, Mrs. Lena Kuykendall.

Mrs. White and Mrs. Carol Raourn served refreshments in the student lounge.

American Gold Star Mothers

One of several organizations participating in the Memorial Day ceremony here Friday was American Gold Star Mothers. One of them, Mrs. Fannie Neiberger, placed a wreath at a monument at the Memorial Park Cemetery. Left to right, first row, are Mrs. Edna Crouch, Mrs. Nell Delph, Mrs. Neiberger, Mrs. Gordon O. Tidwell and Mrs. Zelpha Hill. Back row, left to right, Mrs. Augusta Oehrke, Mrs. Lydia Silva, Mrs. Mary Pummel and Mrs. Roseta Lawson. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Easter Sunday at Church, 20 Years Ago

On Easter Sunday, April 17, 1949, this picture of the choir of the First Christian Church, then located at Seventh and Massachusetts, was taken. In the pulpit is the guest minister for the day, the Rev. L. Ward McCreary. At the extreme right, seated at the organ, is Mrs. H.O. Foraker, organist and director.

Third row, Emery Meyers, Mahlon Rhoads, Jr., Roy Dawson, Edgar Brown, C.T. Plumlee, Fred Robertson, Jack Meyers, Roy Petty, Edwin Danforth, J.T. Alexander, Bill Roberts, Dr. O.J. Durnell, R.E. Mullen and J.T. Fullerton.

College Degree at 83 Sets Record at School

By JOANNIE KIDDER
The Joplin News Herald
For The Associated Press

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — When Horace Shapley steps up to receive his Associate of Arts degree at commencement exercises this afternoon at Missouri Southern College, he will be the oldest degree candidate in the history of the college.

Shapley, 83, commutes 20 miles each week from his farm home on Jasper Route 2 to night classes on the spacious new college campus. He began his studies in 1961 at the college, then Joplin Junior College in a downtown building.

"I was watching TV one night," he recalled, "after I had retired — not retired, just quit working—when I heard an announcement about classes at the college. They said you didn't need to be a high school graduate to take psychology. So, I thought, let's go down and see what 'tis."

Shapley remembers attending Warrensburg Normal school in 1904 for three semesters, although his records were burned in a fire at the school, now Central Missouri State College. As a youngster he got through the fifth reader, which he says is about equal to the eighth grade.

At Missouri Southern College he has taken such subjects as botany, U.S. history, U.S. and state government, modern math ("one of the easy subjects"), economics, geography, criminology, family, speech, three English classes, and two art classes. His average grades are Cs, although he has received a couple Bs and one D.

Since 1961 he has accumulated 62 hours of credit, the amount needed for an associate degree.

He has attended night classes regularly since 1961, except for a year or two. But in the last five semesters he has missed only one class. "That was a final exam in art," he says, "when I was just getting over a strep throat."

This year Missouri Southern College will award 90 associate degrees, which are earned by two years of regular study. The college is also awarding its first baccalaureate degrees this year and there are 192 candidates for the four-year degrees.

Shapley was born Nov. 2, 1885 in Barton County where he has lived most of his life. A retired farmer, he now lives alone on the half section of land which he rents out. He was married twice, first at age 26, and then at 56. "I don't know if I'll make it to age 86 or not," he says. His first wife died in 1917 and the second in 1957. He has no children.

A twin brother, Harlow Shapley of Peterborough, N.H., is a noted astronomer and author. For about 30 years he was head of the Harvard observatory. Now retired, Harlow Shapley devotes most of his time to lecturing.

Shapley's other brother, John, who is five years younger, went into archeology and the history of art. He is a former head of the Chicago University art department and now is associated with Howard University in Washington, D.C. "One of my brothers went up (in astronmy) and the other went down (in archeology) while I stayed on the level," Shapley jokes.

His plans? "I don't know as I'll ever come back again," he says, "but I would like to take anthropology, and maybe general psychology and juvenile delinquency. And when I get organized I want to write the 'Saga of Man.'"

Outline Cost Hike Factors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continued strong markets for cattle and hogs were the main reason for the 4 per cent boost in the farm price index for May and there is no sign a serious slump is near, Agriculture Department officials say.

Consumers' demand for meat and their ability to pay higher retail prices are perhaps the two biggest factors in the cattle boom.

Also, economists indicate, no great increase or glut in slaughter cattle movement is indicated for the immediate future, though total production is expanding gradually.

Therefore, unless the unexpected happens, cattle prices are expected to remain at least strong in the foreseeable future.

The department's price report issued Thursday for the month ended May 15 said higher prices for cattle and hogs led in the 4 per cent rise in average farm prices.

Officials said the meat animal price index rose 34 points during the month to 419 per cent of its 1910-14 average.

The average price farmers received for cattle in mid-May was $28.60 a hundredweight, the highest since September 1951. Hogs, at $22.30, were the highest since August 1966.

But the April-May gain of 34 points in the meat animal index was the largest one-month boost since October 1946, the department said, and at the 419 level was the most since June 1951.

The May report showed that the average price of calves was $33.40 a hundredweight, a $1.40 gain from April. Except for April 1951, this was the highest calf price on record.

The department had predicted earlier that cattle prices generally would continue strong through the summer despite an estimated increase of about 6 per cent in marketings during April-June.

Feed supplies generally are ample, though the department has revised upward its estimate of total domestic feed use this year, mainly because of the increased livestock feeding.

Cash grain markets have strengthened, and corn at mid-May averaged $1.19 a bushel, compared with $1.12 in April and $1.09 in March and a year ago.

Scholarships Established At JuCo Here

Temple-Callison Co., last week joined the growing ranks of Sedalia organizations that have established scholarships for State Fair Community College students.

The announcement was made by Fred Davis, president of the college.

"We are very appreciative," Davis said, "and feel sure this contribution to the scholarship program will benefit many worthy students in the years to come."

The amount of the scholarship was not revealed.

"State Fair Community College hopes to be able to assist those who make application for financial help," Davis said. "This is a community college and we desire to help students attain a higher education..."

Why are more folks coming to our bank for new car money?

By following through on our promise to make new car financing a smooth and convenient process, we're meeting more new friends every day.

One good reason people are seeing us for money assistance is that we take a personal interest in matters like budget planning.

This personalized attention means that we can arrange terms based on an individual's income so there's no strain on monthly payments.

New car customers have also discovered that our bank doesn't tie up their time with annoying red tape. The sincere, warm attention just comes naturally.

When it's time to buy a new automobile or a good second car, visit the bank that puts customer convenience first. We'd enjoy having you join our group of new friends.

Hopes Canadians Will 'Reconsider'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, returning from a week of North Atlantic Treaty Organization meetings, said today he hopes a proposed Canadian troop withdrawal would not have a "snowballing effect" on Congress or the U.S. commitment to NATO.

Commenting on Canada's plan to withdraw two-thirds of its 10,000 troops in Europe, Laird said, "I hope it will be reviewed by the Canadian government.

"I don't think this is the time to reduce our forces in Europe . . . President Nixon has said we are moving from a period of confrontation to a period of negotiation."

The Nixon administration intends to maintain its NATO commitments at the same level, Laird said.

"But Congress makes the decisions," he added. "I hope we can move forward. I hope this does not have a snowballing effect in our Congress."

The Canadian action has been viewed disapprovingly by U.S. officials concerned over the effort to keep NATO defenses strong—and not just because of its potential unraveling impact on other allies.

There have been calls within the United States for a withdrawal of a sizeable chunk of the American force now in Europe. Proposals for a U.S. pullout, widely aired in the Senate before the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia last August, are cropping up again.

Laird said little today about the question of British-West German guidelines presented in London that called for the early use of nuclear battlefield weapons in a European conflict. He said this question will be taken up again in the November NATO meeting in Washington.

The secretary said only, "I think it's important to maintain the credibility of our forces. This has maintained peace and prevented any nuclear exchange in the last 20 years."

Laird, during the meeting of the seven-nation Nuclear Planning Group, stressed the need to increase combat readiness and effectiveness of conventional forces so they could contain any initial attacks.

As the round of meetings in Brussels and London was ending, diplomatic sources here reported Nixon has run into a noticeable lack of allied enthusiasm for proposals he made April 10 to tighten political and social teamwork under NATO.

Only one of three items Nixon proposed to provide fuller consultations and a social welfare "third dimension" for the defense alliance seems likely to win NATO acceptance soon, diplomats reported.

Nixon proposed:

—Regular deputy foreign minister meetings.

—A special political planning group to work on long-range issues.

—A committee to marshal know-how among NATO members to meet modern social problems.

The allies in responding to the Nixon proposals have not quarreled with his goals but have generally questioned whether the new devices are needed in view of machinery already set up, diplomatic sources said.

Invents New System

A new type of braille "slate," designed by Mrs. Ruth Barr of St. Louis, is in use at the Missouri School for the Blind. The result of three years' trial-and-error work, it is expected to supplement the conventional type in use since the 19th century. Braille "slate" consists of two metal leaves with punched dots which are transferred to paper by means of a stylus. The new upward writing slate with raised dots makes it possible to write from left to right without taking the paper out and turning it over for reading. The old process requires a blind person to punch these symbols "thinking backwards" because the embossed paper must be removed from the standard slate and turned over to read.

Hurricane Subject Of Attack by Man

MIAMI (AP) — This could be the year when man makes his first major assault on a hurricane—a daring, hopeful effort to drain some of the man-killing energy from the terror of the tropics.

The hurricane season opens Sunday but weather patterns indicate a long wait for the first big blow to come howling across tropic seas.

"The Atlantic Ocean is completely covered with anticyclone conditions," said Arnold Sugg, deputy director of the Miami Hurricane Center. "We have spotted only three tropical depressions this year. All over the tropics, pressures are normal and holding steady."

Conditions this year are directly opposite to those at the start of the 1968 season, when low pressures and a mass of warm, moist air over the western Caribbean spawned two hurricanes and a tropical storm in June.

With photographic satellites providing a constant view of the tropics from space, a special hurricane watch begins Sunday and extends through November. Aiding the Weather Bureau are reconnaissance flyers of the Navy and Air Force and the communications experts of the Federal Aviation Agency.

If a hurricane moves into a prescribed area, pilots of Operation Stormfury will hit it with massive barrages of silver iodide crystals to try to tame it.

Dr. Cecil Gentry, Stormfury director, said the planes will not be launched unless the hurricane is well away from land and at the same time within easy aircraft range of the main base at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico.

"When a hurricane is close to land," Gentry said, "the influence of land on the storm circulation is as great or greater than anything we will be able to do to the hurricane."

A psychological factor also rules out any tampering with storms near populated areas. If a storm were seeded, then roared ashore to cause extensive damage, an angry public might blame the scientists.

Forecasters must guarantee that a storm will remain 50 miles from land for 24 hours before the aerial attack is made. This leaves the pilots little opportunity to function in the landlocked Gulf of Mexico, or in the Caribbean Sea with its many islands.

This leaves the tropical Atlantic as the best bet, somewhere in a 600-mile range of Roosevelt Roads. The attack will involve five seedings in an eight-hour period. Then the pilots must remain in the storm for hours collecting data to evaluate the effect on the hurricane.

Dr. Robert H. Simpson, director of the Hurricane Center and creator of Stormfury, believes the chances are 50-50 "that we will find something useful can be done to a hurricane."

"I think we will downgrade it in a fashion that will not eliminate, but will limit, the damage it does," he said.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, June 1, the 152nd day of 1969. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1813, U.S. Navy Capt. James Lawrence issued his command: "Don't give up the ship." He had been mortally wounded, and his ship, the frigate "Chesapeake" was being captured by a British warship near Boston.

On this date:

In 1792, Kentucky was admitted to the Union as the 15th state.

In 1796 Tennessee became the 16th state.

In 1801, the Mormon leader, Brigham Young, was born in Whittingham, Vermont.

Ten years ago — President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia signed a constitution for his nation patterned after the U.S. Constitution.

Five years ago — Premier Levi Eshkel of Israel arrived in Washington for talks with President Lyndon B. Johnson.

US GI Escapes

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Army sergeant from Altus, Okla., who had been a prisoner of the Viet Cong for about nine months, escaped from his captors last Monday and was picked up Friday by an American helicopter crew, the U.S. command reported today.

He was identified as Kenneth R. Gregory, son of Mrs. Helen Gregory, P.O. box 178, general delivery, Altus, Okla.

Spokesmen said he was married but his wife's name and address were not available immediately.

Gregory was found about 12 miles northwest of Tay Ninh City, an area near the Cambodian border, the command said.

His condition was listed as "good" by Army doctors. He had lost 10 pounds, dropping from 165 to 155, while in captivity, the announcement said.

Gregory was spotted on a bamboo jungle trail by a U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division helicopter crew, four days after he "escaped from captivity," the announcement said. It gave no details of his escape, where he had been held or his treatment.

After being picked up by the helicopter, Gregory was taken to the 24th Evacuation Hospital at Long Binh, where he is undergoing examinations.

"When they picked me up, I was actually crying," Gregory was quoted as saying.

His first American food was fried chicken and milk.

"It's the best food I've had in a long time," he said.

A few hours after the milk and chicken he had a meal of steak, vegetables, lettuce and tomatoes, gelatin, ice cream and milk at the evacuation hospital.

The command said he was asked what he missed most while in captivity and he replied: "Coffee. The VC don't drink coffee. They like hot sweetened water and tea."

The announcement said Gregory entered the Army May 18, 1964, and landed in South Vietnam Nov. 2, 1967. When reported missing on Aug. 25, 1968, he was assigned a transportation company in the 1st Logistical Command.

Gregory, who is 23 years old, was a squad leader in charge of a five-ton truck that was on a resupply mission to Tay Ninh City when the convoy was ambushed.

Memorial Day's Moods Vary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a day of pomp and prayer, parades and protests, recreation and just plain relaxing as Americans marked the 102nd annual observance of Memorial Day.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, said Friday the nation should respond to the sacrifices of its fighting men by expanding "the heritage of democracy to new horizons."

President Nixon, spending the three-day weekend with his family at Key Biscayne, Fla., urged Americans not only to honor their fighting men but to pray for peace throughout the world.

In addition to the traditional parades, there were vigils and protests against the Vietnam war in communities across the country. A number of antiwar groups read the full list of 35,000 men who have died in Vietnam.

The consequence was congested traffic and a mounting holiday death toll. The National Safety Council predicted that 550 to 650 persons would die in traffic accidents over the weekend.

The worst accident Friday was in Doswell, Va., 20 miles north of Richmond, where six died when a car collided with a tractor trailer. At Heflin, Ala., five persons died in the collision of a camper with a trailer truck.

It was the day of the supersnarl at Eureka,Mo., 15 miles southwest of St. Louis, where more than 13,000 vehicles were backed up 15 miles because construction had closed the westbound lane on Interstate 44—U.S. 66.

Mayor John V. Lindsay, reviewing a parade in Brooklyn, witnessed a scuffle between police and a woman carrying a placard reading, "My son died in vain in Vietnam." She bit one patrolman before being taken into custody.

At Swarthmore, Pa., a high school youth refused to play "Taps" during a community service. David Carroll, 17, a Quaker, said it was against his conscience but "I meant no disrespect to those who died in wars."

In Berkeley, Calif., about 15,000 young persons held a nonviolent march to support the controversial "people's park." The march route was lined with more than 2,000 National Guardsmen, police, sheriff's deputies and California highway patrolmen.

Mrs. Michael Eric Johnson

Vows Are Solemnized By McGurren, Johnson

CHARLESTON, Ill. — Miss Marcia Ann McGurren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo McGurren, became the bride of Michael Eric Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson, Park Ridge, Ill., in an afternoon double ring ceremony May 17 at St. Charles Borrmeo Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess styled gown of white bridal satin with an A-line floor-length skirt and chapel train. Venice lace threaded with pale pink ribbon outlined the Victorian neckline and long straight sleeves. A headpiece of pale pink blossoms secured her layered veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley.

Maid of honor, Miss Mary Patricia McGurren, sister of the bride, was attired in an empire sleeveless gown of pink satin with white cluny lace overlay and pink satin sash. Identical gowns were worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Jeffrey Benning, sister of the groom and Miss Shelley McGurren, sister of the bride. Junior bridesmaids, wearing similar attire, were Miss Jane McGurren and Miss Lisa Johnson. All carried colonial bouquets of pink roses and lillies of the valley.

The groom chose his brother, David Johnson, as best man. James Johnson and Jeffrey Benning, brother-in-law of the groom, were groomsmen. Ushers were Lee Westerfield and Dan McGurren.

The mother of the bride was attired in a rose crepe ensemble with matching accessories. Mother of the groom chose a mint green ensemble with matching accessories. Each mother wore a corsage of pink and white carnations.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents was held following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Illinois University where she was a member of Delta Zeta social sorority and was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges in 1968.

The groom, also an Eastern graduate, is presently employed by Xerox Corporation, Springfield, Ill.

The couple will reside in Springfield.

Double Ring Ceremony Joins California Couple

CALIFORNIA — Miss Gale Sue Milligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Milligan, and Thomas Wayne Brandes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Brandes, Boonville, were united in marriage May 10 at Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church northwest of California. The Rev. Ivan Dameron performed the evening double ring ceremony before altar decorations of white snapdragons, yellow roses and a Bible, flanked with candelabra.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Paul Birdsong, Miss Lana Donley sang, "More" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride wore a floor length empire gown of imported Chantilly lace and organza with wide Watteau chapel train and long sleeves tapering to a point at the wrists. Seed pearls encircled the rounded neckline and scalloped lace gave a redingote effect to the A-line skirt. Her bouffant veil of hand rolled silk illusion was secured by a forward headpiece of organza and lace petals trimmed with seed pearls and crystals and she carried a Dutch colonial bouquet of white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses.

Miss Shirley Milligan, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, attired in a gown of mint green lace and satin with matching headpiece. She carried a nosegay of white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses.

Brent Bozarth, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man. Candlelighters and ushers were Dale Milligan, brother of the bride, and Gordan Carpenter.

The mother of the bride chose a two piece mint green crepe dress with white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Brandes selected a beige two piece lace suit with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations and yellow roses.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the church. Miss Jerene Kirchoff registered the guests and Mrs. John Sullins attended the gift table. Sering were Mrs. Warren Brandes, Mrs. Carl Randall, Mrs. J. B. Milligan and Mrs. Glen Milligan.

For traveling the bride chose a blue whipped cream dress with blue accessories and a corsage of yellow roses lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. Brandes is employed at the Boonville MFA and Mrs. Brandes is employed at the Farmers and Traders Bank, California.

Miss Preuitt is Bride Of Lt. Bryan Tippie

Spiral candelabras, entwined with smilax, and floral arrangements of chrysanthemums and gladioli enhanced the New Hope Baptist Church for the May 24 candlelight wedding of Miss Teresa Ann Preuitt and Lieutenant Bryan Thomas Tippie.

The Rev. Marvin T. Nobles officiated at the double ring evening ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Preuitt Jr., 1602 West 13th, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenward E. Tippie, 904 South Arlington.

Organist, Mrs. Rosalie DeLozier, played traditional wedding selections. Mrs. Donald Barnes, soloist, sang "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," and "I Love Thee."

Miss Nancy Preuitt, sister of the bride, and Miss Beth Ann Marquis, Kansas City, cousin of the bride, lighted the candles. They wore yellow floor length gowns identical to the bridesmaids and corsages of white spider mums.

As the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, she paused to present her mother with a red rose. Her bridal gown was an A-line silhouette of imported organza. A detachable chapel train fell from the floral embroidered yoke, giving a coat effect. A delicate tiara secured her Chance hand rolled, elbow length, cascade veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow mums, shasta pompons, dracena foliage and stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Marlene Krueger, St. Louis, and bridesmaid, Miss Linda Osterloh, Kansas City, wore identical gowns of popcorn yellow serrano, accented with embroidered trim at the empire waistlines, and fashioned with tiny stand-up collar and cap sleeves. They wore headpieces of matching yellow bows and gathered nylon tulle and each carried a bouquet of yellow mums, shasta pompons and white pompons.

Miss Christy Marie Tippie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenward Ray Tippie, was flower girl. She was attired in a yellow serrano dress under a white organza pinafore. White lace trimmed the pinafore which tied in the back with a large organza bow. She carried a basket of rose petals which had a corsage of small shasta daisies attached. Ringbearer was Master Jay Bill Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Watson, Marshall.

The groom wore the formal dress uniform of the United States Army. Serving as best man was Charles M. Tippie, brother of the groom. Groomsman was Kenward R. Tippie, brother of the groom. Groomsman was Kenward R. Tippie, brother of the groom. The guests were seated by Warren Preuitt, brother of the bride, and Gary Finnell.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Preuitt chose a pink crepe dress with matching accessories. Mrs. Tippie, mother of the groom, was attired in a beige dress with pale green accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white spider mums.

A reception was held at the Holiday Inn following the ceremony. Miss Sharon Buchanan was in charge of the guest book. Serving were Miss Sharon Rayl, Miss Vicki Atkinson, and Miss Kathi Greer. Mrs. Judy Woodward and Mrs. Gary Finnell attended the gift table.

For the wedding trip, the bride selected a yellow crepe sheath with white accessories and a corsage of white spider mums.

The bride will graduate in the fall from Central Missouri State College with a degree in music education. The groom, a graduate of CMSC, is currently serving in the United States Army.

The couple will reside at Ft. Bliss, Tex., where the groom will be stationed.

Parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner for the wedding party at the State Fair Restaurant.

Showers honoring the bride-elect were given May 10 by Mrs. Arvil Buchanan and daughter Sharon; and Miss Marlene Krueger entertained May 17 with a miscellaneous shower.

Miss Stumpf Is Showered

Several bridal showers have been given in honor of Miss Virginia Mae Stumpf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Stumpf, 611 West 32nd, and the bride-elect of Larry Wayne Ryan.

Mrs. J. C. Carman, 1221 East Seventh, entertained with a miscellaneous shower May 10. Gifts for the bride-to-be were placed under a canopy of green and white streamers centered with a cluster of large bells.

Miss Stumpf was honored with a shower May 17 at the home of Mrs. Richard Jones, with Miss Becky Frownfelter assisting hostess. A figurine of a bride centered the refreshment table.

Miss Debbie Silberstein, Miss Cindy Heard and Miss Mary Kay Begany, residents of Wolpers Hall at Missouri University, feted Miss Stumpf with a surprise bridal shower May 19. A large "cake" of towels and bouquet of flowers in a sprinkling can container were featured decorations on the gift and refreshment tables.

On May 24, Mrs. John Zulauf, assisted by Mrs. T. L. Heinze, entertained with a surprise party and shower in honor of Miss Stumpf at the home of Mrs. Zulauf. A bridal figure and white Bible centered the gift table and bits of wisdom and proverbs from the Bible were read to the bride by each guest.

Upcoming events and showers for the future bride include a coffee June 2 given by Miss Beck Thomas and her mother, Mrs. Billy Thomas.

Miss Stumpf will entertain with a bridal luncheon at her home June 4, with her mother, Mrs. E. G. Stumpf, assisting hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ryan, parents of the prospective groom, will host a rehearsal dinner June 6 at Flat Creek Inn.

Plan Open House

A Blue and White Setting For Andrick, Payne Vows

In an evening double ring ceremony May 20 at Antiock Baptist Church, Miss Lois Jean Andrick and Richard Lee Payne were united in marriage.

The Rev. Jack Smothers officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Andrick, 608 East 11th, and the foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Riecke, Ionia.

Arrangements of blue and white carnations and white peonies graced the altar as Mrs. Joyce Eliott sang, "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Shirley Ryan at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a sleeveless empire A-line gown of Alencon lace over satin with bow accents at the shoulders. A satin rose headpiece secured her shoulder length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of carnations. Her only jewelry was a miniature cross pendant.

Mrs. Pam Howard was matron of honor. She wore a blue lace dress with white accessories and carried a bouquet of white and blue carnations.

Serving as best man was Larry Howard. Paul Albin, cousin of the bride and Charles Ward, brother-in-law of the bride, seated the guests.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Andrick chose a sleeveless dress of pale pink, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Riecke, mother of the groom, was attired in a two piece ensemble of light blue with white accessories and carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception for 100 guests was held at the church.

A lace cloth with pale blue underlay covered the bride's table which was centered with a four-tiered cake, trimmed with pale blue roses and silver wedding rings and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Tapers in triple silver candleholders, a crystal punch bowl and flowered centerpiece completed the table appointments.

Mrs. Ruby Riecke, Mrs. Lawrence Hatfield, Mrs. Dean Bolin and Mrs. O. J. Hughes attended the reception table and Miss Donna Hughes and Joy Rodgers were in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Paul Albin and Mrs. Floyd Baker, cousins of the bride, presided at the gift table. Each wore a corsage of carnations.

For traveling, the bride selected a dress of mint green and white, white accessories and a white corsage of carnations, presented to her by her mother.

The couple resides at 1411½ South Kentucky.

Showers honoring the bride-to-be were given by Mrs. Pam Howard, Mrs. Debra Reberry and Miss Cathy Buckley.

CLARKSBURG — Mrs. Charles Fuller, who has been staying at a nursing home in California, recently spent the weekend with her daughter, Mrs. Almeta Jarvis.

Mrs. Edmond Bryant

A Candlelight Wedding Joins Joseph, Bryant

Mrs. Mary B. Joseph, Cole Camp, mother of four, and Edmond Bryant, 1709 South Stewart, father of five, were united in marriage May 9 in the chambers of Sedalia Moose Lodge 1494. Eight of the nine children were in attendance. Cecil G. Keller, son of the bride, is stationed at Ft. Eustice, Va., and was unable to attend.

The Rev. Phillip J. Bowline, pastor of Epworth United Methodist Church, officiated at the candlelight double ring ceremony before a white trellis, topped with pink roses and ribbon. Seven branch candelabra and basket arrangements of pink and white carnations and roses banked each side of the arch.

Pianist, Mrs. Mildred Knox, played "I Love You Truly," and the "Wedding March."

Father of the bride, Frank O. Hill, Torrance, Calif., escorted his daughter down the white carpeted aisle. She wore a street length gown of pale blue Chantilly lace with scalloped neckline and blue seed pearl accents, and folds of nylon chiffon flowed from a satin bow at the center back. A jewel tiara secured her shoulder length veil and she carried a round bouquet of pink and white carnations and pink rosebuds.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Virginia A. Allen, Kansas City, sister of the bride, was attired in a pale blue chiffon embroidered empire gown with three-quarter puff sleeves and cowl neckline. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Bridesmaid, Miss Patricia Ann Joseph, daughter of the bride, wore an empire gown with pink lace bodice and nylon chiffon skirt, fashioned with three-quarter sleeves and nylon chiffon streamers at the center back. Velvet bows and pink roses secured her short brush veil and she carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

The groom chose Charles W. Jett as best man. William A. Piers was groomsman. Seating the guests were Master Paul Joseph, son of the bride, and Billy Bryant, son of the groom.

Master Timothy Bryant greeted guests at the door and Master Daniel Bryant attended the guest book. Masters Robby and Randy Bryant carried gifts. All are sons of the groom.

Mrs. Charles Brent Samuels, mother of the groom, was attired in a dress of pale peach knit, white accessories and a corsage of flamingo pink carnations.

A reception at the lodge followed the ceremony. Serving were Mrs. Gertrude Head, and Mrs. Karen Grinstead, St. Charles, sister of the groom. Mrs. Elizabeth Oneth, Kansas City, daughter of the bride, attended the gift table.

A four-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom framed in a lace heart centered the bride's table. Clusters of pink roses and tiny bridal figurines completed the table appointments. Mrs. Barbara Heather, Knob Noster, baked and decorated the cake.

The groom, a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School, is presently employed by Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. The bride is a student at the Sedalia School of Hairdressing.

The couple resides on a farm southeast of Cole Camp.

Among the out-of-town guests were Duane Oneth, North Kansas City; Raymond Allen and family, Kansas City and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Samuels and family, Concordia.

Frasher and Hibbard Win Jaycees' Races

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Tom Frasher and Roy Hibbard were the two feature winners of the Jaycees' Memorial Day Races at the Missouri State Fairgrounds half-mile track Friday afternoon.

Frasher, from Jefferson City, picked up first place money in the late model stock division and Hibbard cashed in on the super modified purse.

Rain forced postponement of the consolation feature run.

Jay Lyle, Warrensburg, was awarded first place in the "B" feature since he was the fastest qualifier of the second 20 timers.

Frasher, in his 1969 Camaro, didn't take the lead on the 20-lap feature until the final circuit.

Fred Whistler, in a 1962 Chevy, won the pole position and held on to his wide lead, ahead of Larry Phillips and Frasher, until the 17th lap, when he broke a rear axle.

The 10,000 racing fans in the grandstand could see that Whistler's lead was shrinking and began to cheer Frasher on. At that time, Frasher, was in third place behind Phillips and Whistler.

Try as he did Frasher couldn't get past Phillips' '66 Ford.

Whistler was just slowly pushing his car, hoping that his wide lead was enough to give him the victory.

Fate wouldn't have it that way, as both Phillips and Frasher passed him on lap 19.

Frasher finally got his Camaro in a position to pass Phillips on the last lap to post his win.

Roy Hibbard, the "Marshall Flash," won the 25-lap super-modified feature.

Jerry Blundy from Galesburg, Ill., took the lead from his pole position and held onto it until the 11th circuit when Bobby Warn spun out coming out of the second turn.

Bolting from his third place position, when the leader, Blundy, and second place runner, Bill Utz, as they slowed to avoid Ward, Hibbard shot by to grab the lead.

Hibbard was closely challenged by Utz, but right behind was Jerry Blundy.

On the 18th lap, Blundy got by the "flying blacksmith" and started after Hibbard.

It was too late; Hibbard had found the groove and put his foot to the floor of his Chevy to cross the finish line, pulling away from Blundy in second and the third place finisher Utz.

Hibbard's effort netted him $500 first place money.

Russell Hibbard ran fourth, Jay Woodside fifth, while Dick Suttcliff placed sixth.

The other six paying places in order of finish, were filled by: Jim Jenkins, Ken Williams, Ray Lee Goodwin, Ed Leavitt, Flea Atkin and Francis Kelly.

The day got off to a quick start when Tom Corbin of Carrollton, the first time trial runner, broke the old Jaycees' half-mile record, turning the oval in :23.32.

Corbin's record was short lived; Sedalia's Bill Utz traveled the distance in :23.22 when he timed in as the third qualifier of the day.

"Mr. Competition," Jerry Blundy, pushed Utz's time out of the books by turning the distance in a fantastic time of :22.83.

All tolled, 11 of the drivers entered in the time trials broke the old 1968 record.

Another Attempt For NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League will try again to realign 13 teams into a new National Conference for play in 1970 when it meets here this week before another joint session with the American Football League.

The owners may get together late Monday but no news is expected to pop before Tuesday, when Commissioner Pete Rozelle hopes he will be able to announce the new alignment.

When Cleveland, Baltimore and Pittsburgh agreed to move to the American Conference, along with the 10 AFL clubs, they broke up the old four-four alignment of the NFL. The 13 remaining clubs were unable to agree on how to split into three divisions on a 5-4-4 basis at a long session two weeks ago. They will try again with every indication that Rozelle will keep them on the job until it is settled.

Rozelle already has sold 13 Monday night games to the American Broadcasting Company for a reported $8 million annually for three years. He is eager to complete the job of selling the rest of the games but must have a definite alignment before he can make a final move.

If the divisions are to be grouped geographically on a traditional rivalry basis, it would appear that New York, Philadelphia and Washington would be part of one unit. Los Angles and San Francisco would go together. And Chicago, Green Bay and Detroit would form the base of another. Minnesota might go into that group, although the clubs would prefer some warm weather town.

Most of the maneuvering probably will involve the disposition of Minnesota, St.Louis, Dallas, New Orleans and Atlanta. The Cowboys, a power in the league, would be welcome in any company because of stadium capacity but might dominate the division.

Dr. Pepper Team Has Two Games

The Dr. Pepper softball team will be host to Paul's Drive Inn of Kansas City, Kan., today at 1 p.m. at Housel Park.

This will be the first time that these two teams have met.

According to Walt Bellmeyer, manager of Paul's, they played in two Class "A" leagues last year, winning seven out of 10 games in one and six of 10 in the other. Their overall record from last season was 23 wins and 12 defeats.

This will be the first Sunday game for the Dr. Pepper team since splitting a double header with Smithton Bank, several weeks ago.

Sedalia BJ Squad Opens Play

The Central Missouri Ban Johnson League opens its 22nd campaign Sunday night as three games are on the schedule, involving six of the seven clubs in the circuit.

Defending champion Jefferson City travels to Tipton, while Boonville plays host to Sedalia and Centralia welcomes Columbia. Marshall, the seventh club in the league, has an open date.

One of the tightest races in history is expected as at least four or five teams will be in the fight for the league title. The circuit will open play Sunday and finish on July 31. An All-Star game is planned for early August. Jefferson City defeated the All-Star club 7-6 in 1968.

Jefferson City won the 1968 crown with a 15-2 crown with a 15-2 mark, losing only to Sedalia 3-2 and Marshall 2-1. It was the Bears sixth league title in eight years and the first for manager Paul Basnett. The Bears won league crowns in 1961-62-63-65-66-68. Sedalia captured the title in 1964 and 1967.

Sedalia finished second in 1968 with a 13-5 mark, while Marshall was third with an 11-7 ledger and Boonville fourth with 9-7. Overall Jefferson City was 27-9 and Sedalia 17-6.

Earlier in the season the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League raised their age limit to allow boys to participate until they reached their 22nd birthday. Previously a boy was not able to play if he reached his 22nd birthday anytime during the year. Now he may play until the day he becomes 22 years of age.

Pitching could be the biggest problem facing Jefferson City as they seek to repeat as champions. Basnett, now in his second year as manager of the Capital City entry, will be without the services of ace righthanders Kelly Whitaker and Mitchell Calvin. Calvin has decided to bypass B-J ball this summer and Whitaker is in the Army. The two combined for eight of the Bears 15 league wins a year ago and were 1-2 in the CMBJL in ERA with 0.48 and 1.38 marks respectively.

Mike Wilhelm (5-1) and Steve Slaughter (4-2) are expected to carry most of the burden for the Bears this season. Other players returning are infielders Ed Mueller, Denny Alberts and Gary Karr, catchers Gary Reinsch and Randy Ketchum and outfielders Charley Ratz, Dennis Green and Kelly Burre.

Slaughter, who also plays third base, led the CMBJL in batting with a .480 mark a year ago, while Ketchum finished at .359, Mueller and Ratz at .333 and Alberts with a .311 log. Alberts played second base for the University of Missouri this past spring. Also missing from the Jefferson City roster will be Charles Crede, who hit .313 and led the league in RBI's a year ago.

"We expect to be as strong a last year despite the fact that our pitching staff will miss Whitaker and Calvin," stated Basnett. "We expect help from newcomers Roger Taggart and Tom Wieberg." Both are outfielders. "Everybody will be out after us," continued Basnett. "They always like to beat the champions."

University of Missouri infielder Butch Davis, better known for his football work with the Tigers, heads up the list of returning veterans for the Columbia A's as they hope to improve on their 4-11 finish of 1968. Dick Boli, former minor league pitcher, will be back as manager of the club.

Davis, who was the starting shortstop for the All-Star team last year, finished second in the batting race with a .475 effort. He also ranked high in the league in stolen bases, hits and runs scored. Pitchers Craig Strong and Mike Crim give the A's good depth and veterans Dave Moore and Larry Cousins are also expected to help. Kent Fewell is another top-flight infield prospect from the Legion club.

Boonville, with former MU batting star Gene Stephenson at the reigns, will also be in the battle for the title. The Eagles were 9-7 in league play and 11-10 overall in 1968. Righthanders Tony Hain (3-1) and Dick Royston (3-2) give the Boonville crew good pitching, while Wendell Brandis (.322) and Jim Frevert (.348) head up the list of hitters. Chief loss will be catcher Dennis McCoy, who batted .362 a year ago.

Marshall, under new manager A. W. Neff, may face a rebuilding season after losing several top performers from their 11-7 team of 1968. Ace righthander Dennis Droege returns, along with Larry Baldwin. Droege was 6-3 with 125 strikeouts in 85 and one-third innings last season, while Baldwin hit .304 and led the team in several departments.

Five-Event Mat Card Set for Tuesday Night

A five-event wrestling program, highlighted by a rousing eight-man tag team clash, will be presented at Convention Hall Tuesday night.

Matchmaker Gust Karras said the multiple-heavyweight scrap, with four men on each side has been held here twice previously and has proved an action-filled, exciting event.

Making up one of the tag team quartets for Tuesday's battle will be Tornado Murdock, K.O. Cox, Tor Kamata and Jim Osborn. They'll be opposed by a foursome composed of Pat O'Connor, Ronnie Etchison, Thor Hagen and Bruce Kirk.

Four separate matches will be on the card. Matched in the opening event will be Etchison and Osborn. Other matches pit Kirk and Kamata, Murdock and Hagen, Cox and O'Connor.

The team feature is scheduled for the best of three falls with a 60-minute limit.

Power is on the side of the 265-0ound Murdock and his mates. Experience and speed belong to the other unit, headed by O'Connor, the reigning Central States kingpin.

O'Connor, like Etchison, is a veteran of over 20 years in the pro ranks. Despite their longevity, both are still rugged campaigners who have managed to outdistance many of the younger heavyweights in the area listings.

The 235-pound O'Connor recently lifted the Central States title from Murdock and was successful in defending it in a subsequent match with the powerful Cox.

Babe Ruth Season Opens Monday Night

The Sedalia Babe Ruth League (13-15) will open its 1969 season at Centennial Park, Monday.

Kicking off the slate will be Adco and Noon Optimist teams in a 6:15 p.m. contest. Coca-Cola and Rotary will play the 8:15 p.m. games. These times will remain constant throughout the season.

Highlighting the 1969 season will be the state Babe Ruth tournament, scheduled July 24-27 in Sedalia.

Prior to this tourney, the district tournament for Sedalia's all-star Babe Ruth squad will be held July 17-20 in Clinton.

This year several improvements have been made on the concession stand services.

Khoury League Begins Play For '69 Season

The Sedalia Girls Khoury League opens the new season with three games Monday night.

Blue Young will be hosted by Third National Bank at 6:30 p.m. at the Lions diamond in Chic League action.

Also at 6:30 p.m. Adco will host Hobson at the Mopsco diamond, to begin season play for the Petite League.

Reid Grabs Golf Lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Steve Reid, a soft-spoken Californian, bolted out of the pack with a fantastic nine-under-par 61 Saturday and closed to within three strokes of leaders Bert Yancey and Lee Elder in the third round of the Memphis Open Golf Tournament.

Reid, 32, a five-year tour veteran and winner of the 1968 Azalea Open, had a string of seven consecutive birdies en route to the best round on the tour this year and just one stroke off the PGA record.

"I just felt there was no stopping me," Reid said.

He valuted from a tie for 38th to a tie for third, behind Elder and Yancey, with a 54-hole total of 200, ten under par for three tours over the 6,485-yard, par-70 Colonial Country Club Course.

At 8 p.m. on the Mopsoc field, Tallman and S and M of the Chic league will battle one another.

Yancey, a one time West Point cadet, and the slim Elder, one of the few Negroes on the tour, remained in a tie for the top spot, each with a 66.

That put them at 197, three strokes in front of a group of five. Their 54-hole total matches the best on the tour this year.

Leading money winner Gene Littler and U.S. Open champ Lee Trevino were in a group of four at 203. Each had a 60.

Andretti Top Indy Winner

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Mario Andretti reflected overnight on his record-shattering 500-mile victory and said Saturday the key may have been a practice crash nine days earlier which destroyed his first-choice car.

"I'm not at all sure the Lotus I crashed would have finished the race," the Italian-born Andretti said Saturday. "In all honesty, a Lotus has the most ultimate potentials as a race car, but it is not a proven race car."

Andretti crashed into the speedway wall May 21 and emerged with a burned face and a demolished race car.

"Although I have a skinned-up face, I'm almost happy the crash happened," Andretti said.

Official statistics released Saturday made only one change in unofficial standings. Rookie Peter Revson, New York, moved up to the fifth spot and veteran Joe Leonard, San Jose, Calif., dropped to sixth.

Junior Olympic Qualifying Meet Scheduled June 6-7

The qualifying track and field meet leading to the 1969 A.A.U. National Junior Olympics will be held at Jennie Jaynes Stadium June 6 and 7.

Entries for this meet must be in to S & M Athletic Goods, 2113 West Broadway, by tomorrow.

Preliminary events composed of 29 different events for boys and girls in five age divisions, 17 years and under. Six hundred and sixty-two ribbons will be awarded in the individual events to the first, second, third, fourth and fifth place winners.

Winners of the first three places in each event here are eligible to compete for the Missouri Sub-District Championship at Southeast High School, Kansas City, on June 21.

Winners of the first three places in the June 21 meet qualify to compete for the Missouri Valley District Championship at Memorial Stadium, Kansas University, Lawrence, Kans. on June 28. Winners of the first three places will receive A.A.U. Junior Olympic medals.

Winners of the first three places in the senior division only will participate in the Regional Junior Olympics Meet at Tulsa, Okla. and the National Junior Olympics Championship at San Diego, Calif., Aug. 18, 19 and 20, with all expenses paid.

Coach Paul Schwartz and Coach Max Fields, who is supervising the summer physical fitness program, are in charge of the junior olympics here. The age of a contestant on June 28 determines his or her division of entry. Participants may enter four events but are limited to three track events.

Coach Schwartz, meet director, announced that all field events except pole vault will start at 5 p.m. on June 6; the 880-yard run, one and two mile runs start at 6 p.m. on June 6; on June 7 all running events and pole vault will start at 9 a.m. Volunteer help is needed to conduct the meet. Anyone interested should contact Coach Schwartz at 826 1748.

Coach Max Fields is planning to have Sedalia participate in other track and field events during the summer such as the Ozark Track and Field Meet at Springfield and Optimist Junior Olympics at Kansas City in July.

Several practice and instruction sessions in advance of the meet have been set up.

On Wednesday, practices for the various events will be conducted as follows:

2-2:30 p.m. — 50-yd dash, 75-yd dash, 100-yd dash, 220-yd dash, 440-yd dash, 660-yd. dash, 880-yd. run, one-mile run, two-mile run.

2:45 p.m. — relays

3 p.m. — hurdles

3:30 p.m. — shot put

3:45 p.m. — discus

4 p.m. — long jump

4:15 p.m. — high jump, pole vault

The track and other facilities at Jennie Jaynes Stadium will be available each Tuesday through Thursday.

St. Cloud Is Named Champion

FAYETTE, Iowa (AP) — St. Cloud (Minn.) State was named Area 4 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics champion Saturday after heavy rain interrupted tournament play.

St. Cloud owned Friday victories of 8-4 over Upper Iowa and 5-1 over William Jewell and would have played Upper Iowa for the title in the double-elimination tournament.

In the Saturday game played ahead of the rain, Upper Iowa banged out nine hits and capitalized on three errors and 10 walks to thump William Jewell, 11-0.

The loss was William Jewell's second in the tournament. Upper Iowa won two tournament games and lost one.

Pin Stripes Special

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—"There was something special about wearing the pinstripes of a New York Yankee," Charles "Red" Ruffing said. "Maybe it was the way you walked, ate and dressed."

As a boy in Nokomis, Ill., Ruffing walked slowly and with pain from a coal mining accident that cost him four toes and almost took an ankle. As a baseball pitcher, the best right-hander in Yankee history, he walked deliberately.

As a minor league pitching coach hopeful to return to the big leagues, he just walks on and on.

Ruffing is hard, even at 65, as hard as the day Joe DiMaggio arrived in New York and had his hand refused by the rugged fastballer.

"So you're the great DiMaggio, eh?" Ruffing is suppose to have said to the highly acclaimed rookie.

He would have to prove it earn Red Ruffing's shake and did.

Ruffing won 273 games and lost 225 over 22 seasons with the Boston Red Sox and the Yanks plus that last, long 3-5 year with the Chicago White Sox in 1947.

Ruffing spent 11 years in a Cleveland Indians personnel office before he finally put on a New York uniform once again. It wasn't the regal pinstripe but the 1963 New York Mets.

"I was sort of helping out with scouting," Ruffing said after grouping to explain his duties as a coach with the Mets. "They didn't have any ballplayers and I did mostly scouting."

But he wanted only to coach and so quit baseball in 1964 for five years. When old New York teammate Don Heffner asked Red last month to join Denver, an American Association Triple-A team, Red replied: "Well —I don't mind."

He wasn't going to ask to coach, just as he didn't ask for his place in the Hall of Fame. That came after he missed by 18 votes and then five when press box patrons finally woke up and remembered the man they watched as kids.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Twins 10, Bosox 4

BOSTON (AP) — The Minnesota Twins scored seven runs in the second inning and went on to snap a three-game losing streak Saturday with a 10-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Rookie right-hander Dick Woodson survived homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Tony Conigliaro for his third triumph in four decisions. Woodson yielded eight hits before giving way to reliever Ron Perranoski in the ninth.

Mets 4, Giants 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran Ed Charles drove in all of New York's runs with his first homer of the season and a single Saturday as the Mets trimmed the San Francisco Giants 4-2.

Charles unloaded a three-run homer of Gaylord Perry in the fourth inning after Ed Kranepool singled and Ron Swoboda walked with two out.

That was enough for rookie Gary Gentry, who allowed five hits in seven innings, including Willie McCovey's two -run homer. Reliever Tug McGraw preserved the victory and Charles delivered an insurance run with an eighth inning single.

Majestic Prince Gets Belmont Chance

NEW YORK (AP) — On June 12, 1948, Citation romped to an eighth-length victory in the Belmont Stakes and into racing lore as the eighth winner of the Triple Crown.

Since then, four colts, who won both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, have missed Triple Crown glory with defeat in the grueling, 1½-mile Belmont, longest of the famed series for 3-year-olds.

Now it's Majestic Prince's turn.

Frank OcMahon's unbeaten chestnut most likely will get his shot at the Belmont and the Triple Crown next Saturday at Belmont Park. Trainer Johnny Longden says a definite decision on whether to go after the Belmont probably will come in a day or two.

Should the Prince come through, he will join the list of Triple Crown winners that includes Sir Barton, 1919; Gallant Fox, 1930; Omaha, 1935; War Admiral, 1937; Whirlaway, 1941; Count Fleet, 1943; Assault, 1946, and Citation.

If Majestic Prince does win, a couple of more racing firsts will be set.

A victory would make him the first Triple Crown winner to come out of the Belmont undefeated. Going into the Belmont, he has won all nine career starts. Citation, who lost once as a 2-year-old, came closest of any of the current Triple Crown winners to achieving this feat.

The Origin of "30"

Three or four years have passed since a young man and I were discussing the origin of the symbol "30." Wayne King was on the Capital news desk and said he would do some research on this subject. And he did before taking off to become news editor of the Automobile Club of Missouri publication in St. Louis.

So, we ran across the copy the other day and decided to clear it before "30" set in on us. The information is interesting and could be used in classroom routine when schools open next fall:

1. In the days before typewriters XXX (Roman for 30) on manuscript copy indicated the end of the story.

2. Thirty pica ems was the maximum length line used in early type-setting machines. Thus "30" was the end of a line.

3. "Eighty" means farewell in Bengali. An English officer used the figures at the end of a letter to East India Company in 1785. Adopting the figures for brevity in dealing, the company mistakenly made them "30."

4. The first message sent to the central press office during the Civil War, totalled 30 words. The thirty, together with the words "good night," were placed at the bottom of the sheet by the telegrapher.

5. In a wire service office in Los Angeles, a Western Union telegrapher recalls hearing that -30- symbols started with a W.U. operator in Morse Code days. The operator's name was "THURTY" and he signed this to his daily file of stories. Other telegraphers picked it up and made it "thirty" and finally "30."

6. In the pre-typewriter days all news copy was written in longhand and to indicate clearly the end of their stories, writers adopted a numerical symbol, which as legend has it was - 30-.

7. Another reported source is that -30- stemmed from the fact that 30 words were just the right fit in a stick of type in the days when newspaper body type was also set by hand.

8. The end mark in the early days of newspapering was XXX. The mark is still used. But when typewriters came along, reporters found it quicker to hit the space key without going to uppercase. What came out was "3," and to tie it up more neatly they added an "0" and -30- was born.

9. When newspaper stories were hand-written "X" meant the end of a sentence "XX" the end of a paragraph, "XXX" the end of the story.

10. A telegraph operator whose number was 30 once stayed at his key sending news of a disaster long after his assistants had fled and until death came to him.

11. Years ago in the West, dispatches were delivered by telegraph messenger to the newspaper office. The office closed at 3 a.m. and the operator wrote 3 o'clock at the bottom of the sheet. This was abbreviated to "0", then became "30".

12. When the Associated Press was established each member paper was entitled to 30 telegrams a day. Last of the day's quota was labeled "30".

13. Early telegraph operators had a code for conversation asides on the wire, such as 1 meaning "Wait a minute." So "30" meant "end of item."

14. The 30 magistrates appointed by the Spartans over Athens at the end of the Peloponnesian war were overthrown at the end of one year. The end of the tyrants was heralded as "30".

15. When the New York Associated Press began operations its contract called for a night report of 3,000 words. When that amount was reached the figure "3000" showed. This was finally abbreviated to "30."

16. The use of the term meant the end or "that's all" because press wires closed at the half-hour mark, the "30" being used by operators to designate that 30 minutes after the hour had been reached.

17. It got its start in a daily printing office where a certain number of pages was the usual issue. It took an average of 30 galleys of type to make up the run and each type setter took a gally slug in turn from the foreman's desk. When the one who had No. 30 finished his galley he called "Thirty".

18. Use of "30" dates back to an old slug used by journeymen in hand-set days and means "finis" or "it is done." When men worked "at the case," the copy was cut into takes and numbered. The man with the last take could place his "30" slug to indicate the article was complete.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

For Reorganization, Postage 12c

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Winton Blount has acknowledged cautiously to Republican congressional leaders that his plan to revamp the postal system probably would increase first-class postage to 12 cents.

Under his plan, mail rates would be set by an independent commission. However, the new postal authority would be required to show a balanced budget within five years.

Pennsylvania's Rep. Bob Corbett, the top Republican of the House Post Office Committee, suggested that other government agencies should pay more for their now cut-rate mailing privileges. He suggested a complete revision of the franking system as one way to help balance the postal budget without increasing first-class rates.

Blount pointed out that the postal payments from other government agencies are not figured by the pound or the piece, but are determined by negotiation. It might cost more, he cautioned, to start counting or weighing government mail. There was opposition inside the post office, he said, to changing the franking system.

President Nixon spoke up for the postal workers at the closed-door meeting. In reforming the postal service, he urged, "the postal worker cannot be made to feel that he is a second-class citizen. Any postal reforms should be so structured as to be on the side of the workers."

The President suggested that the postal workers would back reforms if they "don't have to take up every grievance with Congress."

Corbett agreed that the postal workers "ought to be called in and consulted."

Blount noted that his reforms call for collective bargaining, which ought to improve the postal workers' lot. He pointed out that collective bargaining had given TVA workers "the best wage rates and fringe benefits" in government.

Postal workers have been demanding "comparability" — which means a wage scale based on comparable rates in industry. They understood that Blount was against this idea.

However, he told the Republican legislative chiefs surprisingly: "I favor the principle of comparability, but it would have to be carefully formulated."

— Fish are Fickle —

The whims of fish, particularly herring, have drastically affected the economy of two countries and their relations with the United States. They are Iceland, which has been spurned by the herring but has not spurned the United States; and Peru, which is not spurned by the herring but has spurned the United States. In fact, Peru has seized three American vessels fishing in the heavy fish run well outside the international 12-mile limit.

While the United States continued an American military mission in Peru until it was kicked out this week and is still continuing favorable sugar quotas to Peru, the United States has treated friendly Iceland like a poor relative.

Iceland, a strategic island in the north Atlantic essential to the United States as a NATO Base, has remained extremely loyal to the USA and NATO. 1966 was a big year for the herring run. Iceland prospered. The next year, however, the herring moved away. Most of the run went to Spitzbergen. Some fishermen claim that part of the herring also sneaked around Cape Horn to Peru.

At any rate, the economy of Iceland has dropped tragically in the last three years. Added to its woes is the Civil War in Nigeria, one of its biggest markets for fish. All in all, exports have decreased 45 per cent in 24 months, the largest drop suffered by any country in the world.

Despite this and despite strong ties with the United States, Washington has done nothing to bolster Iceland's economy. And a penny-pinching Congress is almost certain to scale down the foreign aid budget even further.

— Paris in the Springtime —

There's a famous song which a bevy of Congressmen must be singing, "I Love Paris in the Springtime."

At any rate, at least 14 House members — eight from the Armed Services Committee and six from the Space Committee — are there right now at taxpayers' expense to attend the annual international air show in Paris.

The only one who is paying his own way is Rep. William Bray, R-Ind., who is seeing the show — an exhibition of the latest aircraft of many nations — in company with his wife.

The others are flying free on an Air Force plane and stopping for a week at the finest hotels in Paris, with all expenses paid by you-know-who.

At least one thing is better this year than in 1967. That year chairman Mendel Rivers, author of the draft act, was so anxious to get to Paris that he allowed only two hours of debate on a bill affecting the lives of millions of young men. He wanted to fly to Paris next morning.

Originated Greeting

"Hello" as a conventional form of greeting on the telephone is believed to have originated with Thomas E. Edison. The forerunner of the word probably was "Hallow" with the accent on the second syllable known as a "sailor's hail."

Looking Backward

FORTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. N. L. Nelson of Sedalia elected second vice-president of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Missouri at the state convention in Springfield. Miss Rosemary Burrowes, Miss Cecilia Tilberry and Mrs. Nellie Monegan represented the local club.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Doyle R. Mabry, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Mabry, 508 West 22nd St., celebrated his birthday anniversary with a party at his home for the following guests: Misses Ila Lenora Paxton, Elizabeth Pettis, Doris Williams, Charlotte Paxton, Ruby Paxton, Georgia Pettis, Roberta Mabry, Florence Mabry, Mrs. Lois Paxton, Mrs. Robert L. Mabry, Jimmy Vansell, the host's mother and father, brothers, William T. and Anthony and his sister, Luella.

Young Shun the Ministry But Faith Is in Upsurge

By DAVID POLING

Law, medicine, and the ministry are the three classic professions that have endured for centuries. We are now watching the collapse of the clergy, the break-up of a historic profession. This may sound unbelievably shocking to some readers but then they may be totally disconnected from the upheaval that has jarred, shaken and scattered the church.

As I have written in "The Last Years of the Church," these conditions did not happen overnight. Seminary enrollment did not start to drop yesterday but a decade ago. And the disenchantment of seminarians and young clergymen with the ecclesiastical arrangements was not diminishing but growing in leaps and bounds.

Young men and women have simply run out of patience. The velocity and intensity of social issues is part of their daily routine. When the Church ignores the arts, combats the advances of science and endorses the weary routine of nonpoverty projects, you hardly have a smashing case for institutional growth.

Fortunately, or unfortunately, the young generation that might be the most likely candidates for the ministry have large doubts about the authority, discipline and piety of the Church. Too many of these youngsters have read the Bible and compared the performance of the Church to the scripture text: They are not impressed with the implementation of the Gospel. Nor are they willing to submit to the iron authority of elderly bishops or cardinals or conferences or popes who seem to disdain the question of youth and despise their music, wardrobes and dating habits.

Those who are presently enrolled in the seminaries and divinity schools continue to pursue the Christian outreach on the "frontier." Rather than seek an appointment to a traditional parish experience, these candidates for the ministry are looking into mass communications, theater, poverty programs and other highly flexible assignments. The problem, of course, is to find the resources to pay the costs of such new outposts of the Faith. Currently, much of this is paid for by the local parish through national boards and agencies.

Many ordained clergymen are quietly looking for secular employment, reaching for freedom and independence beyond the confines and restrictions of their denominations. As this mood expands, it will not be uncommon to discover clergymen active in business, government and education positions—and also eager to teach a Bible class, visit the hospitals and be available for supply preaching. Is this really so new or shocking? Thirty years ago Hitler's victim, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, put it on the line when he wrote:

"The church is her true self when she exists for humanity. As a fresh start she should give away all her endowments to the poor and needy. The clergy should live solely on the free will offerings of their congregations or possibly engage in some secular calling. She must take part in the social life of the world, not lording it over men, but helping and serving them. She must tell men whatever their calling what it means to live in Christ, to exist for others."

So the Church may be skidding and the clergy in an advanced state of collapse. But the Christian faith is surging forward like a mighty river, seeking new channels and forming new reservoirs of spiritual refreshment for a hungry, thirsting world.

If you don't recognize the double squeeze available in today's hand, don't feel ashamed. Double squeezes are always difficult and it's hard to see that the seven of hearts is a key card.

Now let's watch expert South's reasoning as he plays the hand. He starts by leading out three rounds of trumps. He decides that since West made one of those weak jump overcalls and showed up with three trumps he probably held six hearts for his weak jump bid. That meant he couldn't have many spades. Hence, either the queen would drop from the West hand quickly or it would be very well guarded in the East hand. Therefore South discards a spade from dummy.

He continues with the king of spades and a spade to the ace. West chucks a heart and South has a sure count of spades and diamonds and a good idea that West started with six hearts and three clubs.

In that case the jack of spades is a threat in that suit against East and if the seven of hearts can be made a threat against West, the stage is set for a double squeeze. West will have to guard hearts, East will have to guard spades, no one will be able to guard clubs.

South's next play is a low heart from dummy. East might have the ace although West should. South's king knocks out West's ace and West can do nothing better than to lead back the jack. Note that a club lead would give South a chance to pick up his 12th trick by a finesse.

Now South wins in dummy, ruffs a spade to get back to his hand and runs the rest of the trumps. Dummy's last four cards are the seven of hearts, jack of spades and ace-nine of clubs. West must discard a club in order to hold a heart. Now the heart is thrown from dummy but that jack of spades forces East to unguard his queen of clubs. No one had been able to protect clubs and the 10 of that suit becomes South's 12th trick.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What inn was the setting for Longfellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn"?

A—The Red Horse Inn at Sudbury, Mass. Destroyed by fire, it has been restored as one of the country's oldest operating inns.

Q—Who was the first American woman to be granted a jockey's license?

School Is Out

Ah, school is out and I recall
That was the greatest day of all.
I had no playmates, but still,
I wandered 'round the yard at will.
I picked nasturtiums and sweetpeas,
I played beneath the big old trees,
I played with dolls and other toys
Even a football meant for boys,
I blew bubbles big and light
That caught the rainbow colors bright.
No bubble pipes as a rule
But I could blow them with a spool;
A little hammock where I'd lie
And watch the white clouds in the sky,
I'd drift along as if I, too,
Were up there in that sky so blue
And on those clouds white as snow,
Over all the world I'd go,
I loved the willow tree, bent down
Until its long trunk touched the ground,
And yet, along its trunk lean
Were fountains of branches with leaves green;
Plum trees in dresses of white lace
Formed always now a favorite place,
And what gay things I could conceive
There in my world of make-believe;
Did I get lonesome? Well, I guess,
The answer really may be yes,
I think when there is only one
A youngster misses a lot of fun,
Especially it isn't good
With no kids in the neighborhood,
But then there wasn't any doubt
I loved the time when school was out.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A new version of Tom Sawyer's fence painting is evident on the protective boards around Lafayette Park across from the White House. Student artists from the District of Columbia were invited by The National Trust for Historic Preservation to decorate the fence. The drab plywood fence was suddenly transformed into an art exhibit. Tricia Nixon invited the artists to come across the street for punch and cookies on the White House lawn, after she had added a few blue brush strokes to an Indian's feathers.

Will it work elsewhere? As Maine goes so goes the nation, is an old maxim. Stephen T. Hughes, president of the General Student Senate of the University of Maine, is the first student in the country to be named to a state university board of trustees.

'Alice in Jungleland' is what the home of 'Princess' Alice Roosevelt Longworth's home suggests. It is so shrouded with shrubbery that the front entrance can hardly be seen. When the house next door was demolished, part of Alice's wall was damaged, but the octogenarian lady was probably asleep. She doesn't get up until noon.

Members of the Senate wives' Red Cross Sewing Circle are in a dither about the divorced wives and present wives of their exclusive club. One such lady arrived the other day and there was much quiet buzzing. What if the present wife should also appear? She didn't, which settled the matter temporarily.

It is rumored that Ambassador Sargent Shriver will soon be relieved of his post in Paris — not because he is a Democrat, nor that he has not done a good job, but that President Nixon did not like his taste in art in the Embassy at the dinner when President Nixon entertained fromer President de Gaulle there.

The members of Congress and other government employees have become so conscious of accepting honoraria or a little pocket money that they may soon be willing to talk and write for a mere "thank you."

A certain Negro taxi driver doesn't have time to participate in riots. He also works in the circulation department of a reputable newspaper; he organizes a baseball team for his delivery boys; he is an active church worker and he blesses his wife for letting him sleep a little longer one or two mornings a week.

King Hussein of Jordan has had a pleasant respite from affairs of state. He volunteered to baby-sit for his four children so his English-born wife, Princess Muna El Hussein, could have a month's tour of the U.S.

Mayor and Mrs. Walter Washington say they prefer plain food. The food may be plain but the names are fancy — Quiche Lorraine and Sunshine Salad, etc. Dr. Bennetta, a Ph.D. besides being the mayor's wife and official hostess, is Director of Women's Centers of the Job Corps. She has special recipes for fried chicken and corn bread.

The Electoral College has plenty of protestors, and its campus is the whole United States. Its spokesmen for reform are in the Congress, so flood them with letters against this outmoded method of choosing our president.

Coin Club Meeting June 7-8

The 11th Annual Coin Show, sponsored by the local Central Missouri Coin Club, will be held two days, June 7th and 8th, at the Mall Cafeteria, Thompson Hills Shopping Center.

Many dealers will be present from various cities and will have displays and offer coins for sale. They will also buy and trade for all types of coins.

The show will be open to the public from 9 a.m. till 9 p.m. on Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. There is no admission charge and door gifts will be presented together with new 1964 Kennedy half dollars every hour on the hour. Sunday at 3 p.m. visitors will have the privilege of qualifying for a U.S. $20.00 gold piece.

Like Love, Appreciation Is What All of Us Crave

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

A social worker friend of mine decided to change a certain archaic custom in my city, its custom of packing arrested children in with adults who were also awaiting trial for delinquent activities.

He was given a rundown building in a foul slum which he turned into what his profession calls a "detention facility" for the children. He also lived in this slum. He had to. He had to because he never knew at what hour of night he'd be yanked out of sleep to run the two blocks back to his "facility" to sweet talk some suicidal kid out of killing himself. At midnight, at dawn, any hour you like, he'd climb up to its roof and struggle for words that would haul the child in from its edge before he'd flung himself to death on the street below. After awhile, judicial bigwigs decided he rated a medal. There was a big party at a fancy hotel, lots of praising talk and award of the medal.

Later I said to him, "You threw the medal away, didn't you?"

"Yes," he said. "How did you know?"

"'How did I know?'" I echoed. "Who cares about medals from people who know nothing about the cost of hauling suicidal kids off roofs at 3 a.m.?"

And that is my answer to the mother who writes, "Our 10-year-old girl can't get enough praise. She's an excellent student who gets straight As or Bs on her report cards. But it's never enough to tell her she's done well. Can you explain this? She has to be told over and over that we are proud of her . . ."

Sure, I can explain this praise-craving. She has received no appreciation. And if you don't understand the difference between praise and appreciation, she does. And I do, too.

Praise is acknowledgement that somebody else's effort has gratified us. It's what spectator sports in bleachers give to the sweating athletes whose work in the arenas below them gives them some kind of thrill. It is howls, applause, cheap talk. But appreciation? That's different. It's knowledge of the cost of the other person's accomplishment. Appreciation can keep its mouth shut, its hand quiet and still communicate its knowledge.

Thus, you'd be wise to begin to appreciate the cost of these good school marks to this child. Because workers, including your child, could not care less about the "medals" of your praise. It's so much sawdust and feeds us not at all.

Ghosts of Normandy Still Haunt the Beach 25 Years Later

EDITOR'S NOTE—Don Whitehead, a two-time Pulitzer Prize winner when he was a correspondent for The Associated Press, was with the 1st Infantry Division when it landed on the Normandy beaches 25 years ago on June 6—D-Day. Now retired, Whitehead returned to the historic World War II scene to recall the ghosts of Normandy and describe the changes, where "the land has healed its war wounds, cover the scars with greenery."

THE NORMANDY BEACHES (AP)—On the lonely stretch of golden sand, a red-cheeked little boy kicked his soccer ball to the water's edge. He ran after it on chubby legs, a mop of dark hair flopping over his laughing eyes.

Expertly, he guided the ball with his nimble feet away from the reaching fingers of water and then he booted an imaginary goal.

He had the beach to himself at this hour, or so he thought. He looked tiny on that long curving expanse of sand with the quiet waters of the English Channel behind him. All he saw was the ball and the beach and the water mirroring the blue of the sky. You sensed he felt only the pure joy of living.

He could not know that 25 years ago—on June 6, 1944—the fate of France and, indeed, the fate of Western Europe hung for seven thunderous hours on the outcome of a battle on these beaches. It was D-Day in the Allied move to destroy the Nazi tyranny of Adolph Hitler's Third Reich.

I watched the boy for quite a while. I was glad he could not see the beach as I had once seen it and that he was far too young to see the ghosts that I could see. The ghosts of Normandy are visible only in the memories of those who stormed this shore, the French who lived near the beaches, and the Germans who lost the battle on that long-ago day.

When I looked out across the channel, I could still see the ghostly fleet moving through the early morning mists, the big guns hurling tons of shells at the concrete bunkers in which the Germans were hidden, blasting at gun positions and road networks. I could hear the rumble of the bombers overhead and the bursting of bombs. For me, the roar of the battle still echoed across those waters.

Where the boy was kicking the ball, I remembered the rows of steel and wooden barriers—topped by mines—which the Germans had planted in the sand to wreck the invasion craft. I saw in memory the landing craft plowing through the storm-rough waters, carrying British, Canadian and American troops on the greatest amphibious assault the world had ever known. Perhaps never again would there be another like it.

War Wreckage

In the golden sand of Saint Laurent sur Mer, Normandy, lie the twisted skeletons from one of World War II's greatest battles. Omaha Beach, as it was named on D-Day, June 6, 1944, proved to be the final resting place for these landing craft of the 1st U.S. Division, and the sea has hung them with its wreaths of weed. (AP)

Vines of War

Twenty five years after D-Day, children and tourists stroll along a now peaceful lane on the Normandy coast. But there are many monuments and invasion museums. Trenches still occasionally alternate with hedgerows, and barbed wire spikes the innocence of wild flowers with its rusting thorns. (AP)

I could see as clearly as though it were yesterday the shells crashing into the troop-laden small boats, the bodies floating in the surf, the thousands of men trapped at the water's edge— caught in the crossfire of the German guns shooting down from the bluff behind the beaches. And knifing through it all were the screams of the wounded.

The ghosts of Normandy. They are everywhere for those who return to look for them. They are on the beaches, in the hedgerows and in the gray little Norman towns clustered around their ancient churches.

Men who were once young warriors—now growing gray and paunchy— return to Normandy to look for the roads and fields over which they moved in fighting their way from the beaches. They return to remember—Americans, British, Canadians and French. Even the German return seeking the scenes of their defeat. Together they stand and look out across the channel and they marvel at the victory that was launched in one searing day of battle along the beaches known as Utah, Omaha, Gold, Juno and Sword.

Most of those who return are confused at first. The beaches have been swept clear of the wrecked boats, the barriers, and most of the once-familiar landmarks. The sunken ships that jutted from the waters at low tide have disappeared—broken up by the relentless tides or cut up by salvage crews. Only the remnants of the artificial harbors remain to mark the Herculean effort to supply the fighting men across the beaches.

The land has healed its war wofcering the scars with greenery. Herds of big, fat cattle with milk-swollen udders graze in lush grass behind the thick hedgerows. Towns and cities shattered by bombs and shell—St. Lo, Isigny, Carentan, Caen—have been rebuilt. The huge Norman horses so numerous a quarter of a century ago have almost disappeared—replaced by tractors. The prosperity of Normandy is evident in the torrents of small cars that pur down the highways and clog the streets of even the small villages. The bicycle riders of yesterday have become the automobile drivers of today.

Normandy has changed greatly since that June day in 1944. And yet it will never move far from the ories of the past. There are too many monuments and invasion museums, and too many stories that have become legends interwoven with the lives of the families who cling to this land.

Take Ste. Marie Eglise, the first town in Normandy to be liberated by American troops. A stranger enters the small bookshop of Monsieur A. Dupont. The shop faces the town square which is dominated by the massive church on which construction was first started in the 13th century.

The stranger questions the proprietor about the events of that historic day. Dupont calls his wife from the rear of the shop. Somehow the word gets around town that an American is asking questions about the invasion. Soon the shop is filled with people, all offering their versions of what happened, all trying to talk at the same time.

But from the excited talk emerges the outline of the liberation of Ste. Marie Eglise:

Near midnight on June 5, a fire swept through a villa at one corner of the town square and threatened to spread to a nearby loft filled with wood and straw. Volunteer firemen leaped from their beds, dressed hurriedly, and raced to fight the blaze. Led by the late Mayor Alexandre Renaud, they formed a bucket brigade from the cattle-market pump, working under the watchful eyes of German guards.

And then as the glow of the fire cast dancing shadows on the old church, waves of transport planes thundered low over the town. Paratroopers spilled from the bellies of the aircraft, their chutes clearly visible in the moonlit night. They were part of the American 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions' 13,000-man force. Their mission was to disrupt German defenses, set up roadblocks, knock out artillery, and seal off the western approaches to the beaches where the main forces would strike at 6:30 a.m.

The Germans opened fire with automatic weapons and rifles, shooting at the figures dropping from the sky. A paratrooper fell into the blazing villa and perished instantly in a shower of sparks. The parachute of Pvt. John Steele caught on the church steeple and he found himself dangling helplessly, looking down on the weird scene in the square where Germans were shooting into the sky and Frenchmen were racing for cover. Steele played dead and lived to become a hero to the people of Ste. Marie Eglise.

To the east, more than 4,000 paratroopers of the British 6th Airborne Division were dropping in the night near Caen to seize some key bridges, knock out others, command road intersections, and destroy a battery of guns which commanded the British beaches.

Even as the paratroopers were jumping, the massive fleet of American and British warships and strange-looking landing craft was moving across the channel, undetected by the Germans.

The invasion was 24 hours behind schedule. It had been set for Monday, June 5, but a storm had swept down on the channel on Sunday and forced Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied war machine, to issue a postponement order. Then his meteorologists had detected a coming break in the weather. And early Monday morning a message went to fleet and Army commanders: "D-Day stands as is. Tuesday, June 6th." Now the die had been cast.

As the fleet began to move, Pfc. Leo Heroux of Central Falls, R.I., 348th Amphibious Engineers, 5th Special Brigade, stood on the deck of a small ship and marveled at what he saw.

"It was beautiful," he remembers, "all those ships moving into the channel. If they had been placed end to end, we could have walked across them to France."

The small vessels tossed violently in the rough channel waters and men were deathly seasick. But, curiously, the storm was a blessing as well as a curse. On Sunday and Monday, the German patrol craft did not venture onto the stormy channel and aircraft did not make their usual reconnaissance because of the heavy cloud cover.

As a correspondent for The Associated Press, I had been assigned to the 1st Infantry Division which—with two attached regiments of the 29th Infantry and two battalions of Rangers—was to spearhead the invasion of Omaha Beach. On our right would be the 4th Infantry Division landing on Utah Beach. On our left, the British beaches, Gold, Juno and Sword, were to be taken by the British 50th Division, the Canadian 3rd Division, and the British 3rd Division.

I sailed on the USS Samuel Chase, the headquarters ship for the First Division's 16th Regiment. It was part of the spearheading "Force O" of 34,000 men who would land on Omaha Beach. In all, more than 55,000 men were scheduled to assault the American beaches on D-Day.

Unknown to the American assault commanders, the Germans' veteran 352nd Infantry Division had moved into the blockhouses, bunkers and trenches looking down on Omaha Beach. They were there on a training maneuver and they were waiting.

Just before dawn, the bombers thundered over—hundreds of them—and we heard the distant rumble of the exploding bombs. Unfortunately, few of the bombs fell on the German bunkers and gun positions. Not a single battery was knocked out on Omaha Beach.

When dawn came we climbed from the Samuel Chase, down rope nets into the bobbing small craft and headed for shore. The big guns of the battlewagons were hurling salvos of shells toward the land and the concussion slammed against us. Amphibious tanks, put into the water 6,000 yards from shore, wallowed through the rough seas and sank. Sometimes the crewmen escaped through the hatches. But often the sea swallowed tank and crew in one gulp.

The coxswain of our boat drove the craft on the rising tide through a gap blown in the beach obstacles, and we were in the hell of the battle. As far as I could see through the drifting smoke of guns and explosions, men lay in the shale of the water's edge, pinned down by machinegun and rifle fire and the slamming bursts of 88mm shells that came from the bluff hardly more than 100 yards away.

Ironically, they called this section of the beach Easy Red. But the troops on other parts of Omaha Beach were enduring the same agony. And for seven terrible hours the battle hung in the balance.

But at seven hours after H-Hour, the battle of the beaches had been won. On the right flank the 4th Infantry was pouring ashore against relatively light opposition. On the left flank the British and Canadians were anchoring themselves firmly before Caen.

In the little coastal village of Vierville-Sur-Mer, on the western end of Omaha Beach, 31-year-old Michel Hardelay was awakened before dawn by the jarring crunch of bombs and the roar of many planes in the sky. There had been planes and bombs before—but never this many.

"It must be the invasion."

Hardelay told himself.

Hurriedly, he pulled on pants over his pajamas. He found his mother, brother, niece and the maid were awake. They went to an upstairs window which overlooked the dark village and the moonlit beach beyond. Through his binoculars, Hardelay saw bombs bursting on the beach and German soldiers lying in the sand. Two bombs exploded in the garden and shook the Hardelay house. But nothing was visible on the channel.

And then in the growing light of dawn, Hardelay saw the fleet emerge through the mists and the artificial fog drifting across the water. Dozens of ships! Hundreds of ships! Never had anyone before seen anything to equal this sight.

Hardelay ran from the house shouting to his neighbors: "It's the invasion! It's the invasion!"

Hardelay, who would live to become the mayor of his village, felt an exulation he could not describe. He hated the Germans. He had served as a second lieutenant in the engineering corps of the French army until the fall of France in 1940. He had refused to work for the German invaders. He had returned to the family home in Vierville to wait for the day when the enemy would be driven from French soil. He knew that day would come.

On the beach below Colleville, Pfc. Leo Heroux of the 348th Amphibious Engineers could relax for a time in the late evening. The battle had passed over the beach, and he was bushed from hours of helping unload ammunition and supplies being rushed ashore.

His captain said: "Heroux, we're going to move our base from the beach into that pasture up there. Find out who owns those cows and have him move them somewhere else."

Heroux could speak French fairly fluently because both his parents had French backgrounds and they often spoke the language in their home in Central Falls. He soon discovered in questioning the natives that the cows belonged to farmer Ferdinand Brouckx. Heroux found Brouckx, explained the situation to him, and he quickly agreed to transfer his cows to another field.

"Sir," Heroux said, "would it be all right if I came to your house for a glass of fresh milk? I haven't had a glass of milk since I left the United States last October."

"You come to my house anytime," Brouckx said with a chuckle. "We have plenty of milk."

As soon as he could get away from the beach the next day, Heroux hurried to the Brouckx home and knocked on the door.

"When I walked into the house," Leo recalls, "I saw a girl standing at the top of the stairs looking at me. She was one of the prettiest girls I had ever seen."

Leo Heroux and Anne-Marie Brouckx Heroux now live in Bayeux. Leo proposed marriage in a letter written that winter of 1944 from Germany. And Anne-Marie agreed to marry him. She came to the United States after the war and they were married in Central Falls. But then they decided to return to France to be with Mr. and Mrs. Brouckx who were lonely for their daughter. Leo became a partner with his father-in-law in a prosperous automobile driver-training schoo—the first to be opened in Bayeux.

Their 21-year-old first born, Norman, is serving a hitch in the French army. Eighteen-year-old Nancy is an exchange student at the University of Michigan. Beauteous 16-year-old Beatrice—who dreams of following her sister to the United States—and her 14-year-old brother, Leslie, go to school in Bayeux where their mother teaches English.

"I still have my American citizenship," Leo says. "Sometimes I think about returning home to live. But we are happy here. And I often think of how very lucky we have been."

Quite often, Leo Heroux goes alone to the beautiful American cemetery standing on the bluff above Omaha Beach. More than 9,000 American dead lie beneath the gleaming, white marble crosses and Stars of David. There were more than 14,000 others who fell, too, in the battles for Normandy, but families preferred to have them buried at home. And there were the missing. There are no crosses for them but their names are inscribed on a wall in a "Garden of the Missing."

So the ghosts are still there out on the beaches and Leo Heroux is one who can see them. Perhaps they, too, were watching as the small boy kicked a ball across the sand and nimbly rescued it from the clutching fingers of the water reaching out from the channel.

It is just as well that the boy could not see the ghosts of Normandy.

Those Who Stayed

The U.S. cemetery at Saint Laurent sur Mer stands on the bluff above "Omaha Beach." More than 9,000 of those who died 25 years ago in the battles for Normandy lie here beneath gleaming white marble crosses and Stars of David.

Says Auto Repairs Deficient

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Repairs performed on one in three vehicles examined by the Automobile Club of Missouri in a comprehensive study of vehicle defects was less than satisfactory, the study report, released Friday, said.

The report was made public through the Senate subcommittee on anti—trust and monopoly, which is looking into some aspects of the automotive industry.

The club said a study of 6,500 cars at its St. Louis diagnostic center showed that in 23.3 per cent of cases work performed was poor and in 11.3 per cent of the cases it was classified as bad. Another 65.4 per cent of the repair jobs checked were approved as satisfactory, the report said.

The report said less than half the front-end alignment work examined was satisfactory. 83 per cent of brake repairs were acceptable and 71.3 per cent of all engine repairs were satisfactory.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D—Mich., chairman of the subcommittee said the findings of the study indicate Americans may be paying as much as $8 billion a year for "worthless work."

The Auto Club said cars involved in the study were examined before and after repairs were performed.

The report also said that about 75 per cent of some 10,000 vehicles checked at the diagnostic center had potentially dangerous defects and the older the car the greater the coourrence of defects.

About half the 1968 models checked had defects affecting the driver's vision, ability to control the car, and signal his intentions to other drivers or problems increasing the danger of fire or carbon monoxide poisoning, the report said.

In the case of 1963 models, the defect rate went up to 90 per cent, the report said.

Pettis County Post 16, The American Legion, will meet on Monday, June 2 at 8:00 P.M. The Ladies Auxiliary will also meet.

Telegram Was Worth The Effort

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The letters stopped in October. Sybil Stockdale didn't notice until February, when she still hadn't gotten a Christmas note she expected from her husband, a prisoner of war in North Vietnam since 1965.

She checked with other prisoners' wives.

"No one had had any mail since October," she said Friday in an interview. "I then asked the women to write to me if they wanted to send a telegram, and I would suggest dates so the wires would be spaced."

So began a flood of 200 telegrams to Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief peace negotiator in Paris, pleading to know whether husbands were dead or alive and how they were being treated.

Then, at the end of April, some of the wives started getting letters again. Mrs. Stockdale got one May 2 from Navy pilot Capt. James Bond Stockdale.

He wrote that he was fine, told her not to worry and included a message for their children.

She knows of 75 letters received since the telegram campaign started. All were written during October and November.

"They must have been held some place for some time and maybe the telegrams ... encouraged them (the North Vietnamese) to let the letters out," she said.

The campaign continues. At intervals Mrs. Stockdale suggests, wives pepper Xuan Thuy with 15 to 20 telegrams a week. Each wife writes and pays for her own wire. The cost depends upon wordage. Mrs. Stockdale sent one that cost $10.35 for 53 words.

Enough wives are participating to have telegrams scheduled into September.

As Xuan Thuy's desk piles higher, Mrs. Stockdale hopes the North Vietnamese will be persuaded to release a list of all prisoners telling which are still alive.

"For a family not to know whether a husband is alive or dead for three or four or five years is completely inhumane," she said. "For the North Vietnamese not to send out a list completely contradicts any of their claims to being a humane country."

13,000 Vehicles In Traffic Jam

EUREKA, Mo. (AP)—Heavy holiday traffic and a road improvement project combined Friday to produce a mammoth traffic jam involving an estimated 13,000 automobiles on Interstate 44 in eastern Missouri.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said at times, the 6-hour pileup on I-44-U. S. 66 stretched as far as 14 miles, from Eureka eastward to I-244.

Both westbound lanes of the busy interstate highway were closed because of the construction work and westbound traffic was routed over one of the two lanes normally reserved for eastward traffic.

Fifteen state troopers labored to unsnarl the pileup. They routed westbound traffic over both lanes of the eastbound side of the road, permitting eastbound vehicles to use one of the lanes periodically.

The highway patrol said another traffic jam might develop when motorists return from holiday weekend trips Sunday, unless drivers use other routes to by-pass the bottleneck.

SELF-HELP QUIZ
Why You Feel "Blue" And What to Do About It

Ask Them Yourself

FOR REP. SEYMOUR HALPERN of New York

Is the campaign to put a Secretary of Peace in the President's cabinet making any progress?—Tom Muller, Culver City, Calif.

● Fifty-nine Congressmen joined me in introducing the Peace Act Bill, which would put a Secretary of Peace at the head of a Department of Peace. It would also establish a joint committee on peace and international cooperation in the Congress. As proposed, a new Department of Peace would take jurisdiction over the Agency for International Development, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and the Peace Corps—now under the jurisdiction of the Department of State.

FOR ROMY SCHNEIDER, actress

As a chic dresser, what do you think about the current pants rage?—D.N., Lancaster, Pa.

● The majority of my daytime clothes are pants outfits. I also have an evening sequined tuxedo. I like to accessorize a pants outfit as much as a dress or a skirt.

FOR OTTO J. SCHERSCHLIGT,

Chief of Parks, South Dakota

Whose idea was it originally to carve four Presidents' faces on Mt. Rushmore?—Mrs. Clara Strand, Osnabrock, N.D.

● Doane Robinson, South Dakota historian, first proposed sculpturing figures of local heroes in the granite of Custer State Park. In 1925 sculptor Gutzum Borglum conceived the project as of national significance and chose Mt. Rushmore for the figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt.

FOR GOV. ROBERT DOCKING of Kansas

Why does Kansas have the highest draft acceptance rate (79.4 percent)?—Mrs. Byrae George, Seattle, Wash.

● An individual must meet prescribed minimum standards in physical (medical), mental, and moral areas to be drafted. The statistics report more Kansans have been rejected for not meeting medical standards than the national average, but fewer Kansans have been rejected for mental and moral reasons than the national average. Therefore, Kansans perhaps are not quite as physically fit but are better educated and have fewer convictions for criminal offenses than draftees of other states.

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director, FBI

How can parents help stem the growing crime problem in this country?—Harold Power, Doroville, Ga.

● It is most important for parents to provide children with firm guidance and the influential example of law-abiding, responsible citizenship.

FOR JOHN SHAFFER, Administor, Federal Aviation Administration

About how many planes are there in the air over the U.S. at any given time?—Beatrice Teeple, Toledo, Ohio

● It is impossible to count the number of aircraft. Our best estimate is about 10,000. In addition to the 2,000 or so flights under constant surveillance from the ground—those flying under instrument flight rules (IFR) according to predetermined flight plans—there are about 8,000 other aircraft flying on a see-and-be-seen basis.

FOR FANNIE FLAGG, comedienne

I understand that at one time you had your own tv talk show in Birmingham, Ala., and that it was there that you developed many of your celebrity impersonations. What prompted you to concentrate in this area?—T. L., Lancaster. Pa.

● The format of the show called for me to interview well-known people passing through Birmingham. Since usually there were none within a hundred miles of Birmingham, I interviewed myself.

FOR BOWIE KUHN, Baseball Commissioner

In most sports, no overtime is played to break a tie score. Why is it done in baseball?—H. E. Gillman, Glendale, Calif.

● Baseball has no time clock. It is always played to a decision, barring rain.

FOR JERRY LEWIS

● Some "show folk" don't like the idea of their children in the business, but I'm not one of them. Gary is a very talented performer, and I'm sure he'll do very well, indeed.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Classified Photos Some believe that since we all have two bodies—physical and astral—we can be in two places at once. The theory is called "astral projection." Long John Nebel (NBC all-night radio show) not only further explains it in his book (coauthored with Sanford M. Teller) "The Psychic World Around Us," but relates: In the summer of 1966, a listener revealed that he'd found himself astrally projected into CIA vaults, where he saw photos of an old man in a wheel chair, captioned "Adolf Hitler, Jan. 24, 1966." John was skeptical. Then, a couple of years later, "one of America's most prominent authors" related to Nebel that a retired general showed a magazine editor CIA photos of a sickly white-haired old man in a wheel chair, captioned "Adolf Hitler, Buenos Aires, 1966." Long John's "determined disbelief" weakened a little.

and 3,800 pounds of French fries, while 100 pies are baking away. Chow over, the 30-foot-long dishwasher goes into action—helped, of course, by indispensible K.P. humans.

sion sprockets) consists of daredevil spins. "It took two years to make," says Colman. "I thought of giving the Commander more of a costume, but so many spectators 'just knew' there was really a person inside running it, I decided on a see-through body."

Laugh-Out "Our society is one in which adult interest in the coming generation is very low and exploitation very high, resulting in mutual hostility and distrust," says Dr. George Sheviakov, author of "Anger in Children." "The angry child must see the helping adult not as another 'enemy' but as a person who calmly accepts his feelings, which are genuine at the moment." Reasoning is futile until after a cooling-off period. Also recommended are opportunities for working off anger through sports, debates, games—and conversation. The psychologist warns parents against sarcasm and encourages laughing together: "The mere physical process of laughing automatically neutralizes anger."

My Friend, the Scientist Singer Peggy Lee has had to live with the tragedy of cancer most of her life, she told Family Weekly. "My little sister and my father died of it. And many friends—one just recently." It happens that Peggy is an old friend of a cousin of Dr. Jonas Salk and asked to meet him. ("Some of my favorite people are scientists; their sense of humor is really wild, and they have a great, quiet strength about them.") The result was that Peggy became "Tree of Life" chairman for Salk's cancer research institute in La Jolla, Calif.

Yes, if you act now, you can use the coupons on this page to have your film processed at introductory low prices. We make this remarkable offer to introduce you to our famous photo processing quality and EVERYDAY LOW PRICES—prices that will always save you really big money on your picture taking. Last year, our plants processed 75 million pictures. Because we want to make it 80 million pictures this year, we are making this lowest-price Introductory Offer—AND YOU PROFIT! Once you see the great pictures and service you get when you send your film to us, we think you'll want to become one of our regular satisfied customers.

Kodak Standards, Kodak Materials, Kodak-Trained Technicians— for Over 35 Years.

1934, when BALL PHOTO started, wasn't a particularly good time to start in any kind of business. But, we had an idea which is as important today as it was then. OUR IDEA . . . deal directly with the public . . . eliminate all middlemen . . . standardize on KODAK supplies . . . fast service and low, low prices. Did it work? You bet! Here we are thirty-five years later and more than 575,000 camera owners now depend on us for the very finest work—and keep coming back to us year in and year out. And why not? We have fulfilled our promise of QUALITY and CUSTOMER SATISFACTION, at low prices. We have created the most modern, most advanced film processing laboratories in the world. We insist, absolutely, on processing all film to KODAK standards under the direct supervision of KODAK-trained technicians. We use only KODAK supplies and materials—exclusively!

And we insist that "the customer is always right!" You are never "just a number" to us. We insist on giving every film order we handle the most careful personal attention! Anytime you have a problem, or a question, you'll always get a straight and honest answer from a Customer Service Representative. You are always protected—fully and completely—by our famous DOUBLE GUARANTEE proudly printed below.

How can BALL so consistently deliver guaranteed quality at unbeatable low prices? There's a sound business reason. We do all our own work! We are not merely "middlemen" who farm out your films to other plants, tacking on an extra profit in the process. Often, these other plants are manned by people whose credentials are completely unknown to you. But there's no such risk when you send your film to BALL! You know who you're dealing with. And you know that we back up our reputation for quality and fair dealing with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction!

A man rushed into a small restaurant one morning and asked the waitress for some toast and coffee. The girl replied that the toaster was broken but that it would be fixed any moment and then he could have his toast.

"Never mind," said the man. "Just bring me a couple of slices of bread with my coffee."

"You shouldn't have bread this early in the morning," said the waitress sternly. "Now you just sit down and wait for your toast."

"Look," retorted the man, exasperated, "if I'd wanted a fight for breakfast, I'd have stayed home."

The new minister was pleased to hear his housekeeper singing "Nearer My God to Thee" in the kitchen as she prepared breakfast.

"I'm delighted," he told her when she served his breakfast, "that you are such a religious person, Mrs. Brown. I heard you singing my favorite hymn as you were cooking."

"Oh, that," she replied. "It's what I boil eggs by. Three verses for soft and five for hard." —Dorothea Kent

Dr. William Feinbloom, inventor of "miraculous" lens, fits Billy.

My "Blind" Son Can

By Mrs. ELDA GIBSON

OURS IS A deeply religious family. Ever since we first realized that our only child Billy had been born almost totally blind, my husband and I expressed our hearts' desire in silent evening prayers.

Later, in family prayers, we never audibly asked for his sight—we wanted our boy to know we loved him just the way he was. As he grew up, though, I would often see Billy kneeling beside his bed praying for better vision.

Now our faith has been rewarded. Last August we witnessed a miracle being performed. Today our son can read even this magazine page and walk unaided. In a sighted world, Billy is as excited and amazed as an astronaut landing on the moon. As my overjoyed husband, Big Bill, says, "We're on Cloud Nine." When I recall how it all happened, it still seems like a dream.

Billy was born with a congenital defect doctors call microphthalmia. This means his eyeball is much smaller than normal, his cornea, lens, and retina underdeveloped. His vision was virtually zero.

Billy had to learn by Braille at the Utah School for the Deaf and Blind here in Ogden, Utah. Classed as "legally blind," he is among more than one million Americans with vision of less than 10 percent.

Over the years, we took our boy to many eye specialists and low-vision clinics. Again and again we were told that he did not have any measurable vision to work with, his case was "hopeless," and that his sight could not be improved by surgery or otherwise. Billy accepted his problem with great courage, adjusted to his limitations, and never complained.

Last summer, we decided to try again. I had read about new types of special lenses developed by Dr. William Feinbloom, a noted optometrist and optical researcher in New York. I understood he specializes in "seeing-aids" for the hard-of-seeing.

We wrote Dr. Feinbloom and, after a phone discussion of Billy's case, arranged an appointment. During our vacation, we took Billy, who is now 16, to New York. Before we left, the three of us prayed together, aloud, for the impossible.

We found Dr. Feinbloom, the inventor of those "magic" lenses, to be a tall, gray-haired, kindly man. Billy walked into his modest office and sat down under an intensely bright light. Day after day, for an entire week, Dr. Feinbloom exhaustively examined and tested him.

At first he doubted that Billy had any vision beyond light perception or shadow vision. Actually, he had less than 1 percent visual acuity, but Dr. Feinbloom felt this could be increased somewhat.

"If there's some vision left—even as little as 1 percent," he told us, "we can help."

To test Billy, the doctor first had to teach him to recognize some numbers since he knew them only by touch, through Braille. For reading, Dr. Feinbloom had to design new triplet air-spaced microscopic spectacles magnified 28 times! They're the strongest he has ever made during the 40 years that he has helped some 20,000 patients. I understand that no one Dr. Feinbloom has ever aided was as seriously affected as Billy by microophthalmia.

Day after day, Dr. Feinbloom measured and figured and kept modifying the design in his laboratory. When the crucial time came for Billy to try out his glasses for the first time, my husband and I waited breathlessly. Billy sat down under a bright light. I trembled as I held the eye chart for him to read. (Please, I whispered to myself, please God, let him see this number . . . and the next . . . and the next.)

I watched my son straining to see and call out the numbers as they became smaller and smaller. Then Dr. Feinbloom exclaimed: "I never would have believed it!" Billy could read numbers even the size of the usual newspaper type.

He started with two pairs of those miraculous glasses made up by Dr. Feinbloom himself: one telescopic pair for long distance, the other microscopic for close up. The triple lenses have air spaces between them to remove the blur from images and to sharpen sight. Later, a third set of glasses was designed to enable him to write.

As long as I live, I'll never forget Billy's reaction to his first experiences of real sight. With his new glasses on, he whispered in awe: "Oh, man!" Then he looked at me, quiet for a moment, and blurted out: "Mom, for the first time I see how beautiful you are." I had a hard time holding back the tears.

Leaving the office, looking all around him through his glasses, he kept laughing, and we laughed with him. Chattering away on the street, he commented: "People look funny, like giants . . . I can see that green tree way over there. Unbelievable! . . . Look, a fire hydrant! . . . There's a fat lady carrying a red purse . . . Mother, your hair is so puffed up . . . Everything is so big. Are those really my big feet?"

At lunch, eating his apple pie, Billy grinned. "I can even clean up the crumbs." At the motel where we stayed, he stared at himself in the mirror: "I look rather funny, too." That first night, he went to bed with his glasses on, still looking wonderingly about the room, begging us not to turn off the light.

Through my son's new "eyes," I was forcibly struck by what a sighted world means to one who has always been sightless. At home, when I put Billy's usual breakfast of bacon and eggs before him, he stared at the plate and finally said: "Mother, I never did like eggs much, and now that I can see one I just can't eat it." To his father, he said: "Dad, you chew too fast—I hope you don't mind my trying to improve you." How could we possibly mind? It was such a joy to know he sees these things.

At school, the other blind and near-blind students greeted Billy excitedly. Many wanted to try on his glasses. "What's it like to see?" they kept asking. "Sure wish I had something like that," said one friend. "You're a lucky stiff," said another.

The totally blind just felt the glasses and told Bill how happy they were for him. To others, there was now a glimmer of hope. That first week, the glasses were borrowed by so many youngsters that we had to clean them often to remove all the fingerprints.

We knew we had dear friends, but at church the first Sunday after our return we discovered how deeply they cared about our boy. I was embraced by many in our Mormon congregation as they said, "Billy is such a

What Makes You Feel "Blue"?

SCIENCE calls it "depression"; most people say they have the "blues" or are "down in the dumps."

Whatever you call it, low periods are unpleasant—unpleasant enough for science to study seriously what causes depression and how it may be alleviated.

Test your knowledge about the "blues" against what experts have discovered. Answer true or false to the following questions and check yourself against the scientifically based answers below.

Fritz Albrecht for FPG.

1. The average person who is reasonably well-adjusted seldom gets the blues.

2. Your I.Q. drops when you're depressed.

3. If you feel depressed often, you're likely to be neurotic.

4. People who blame the weather for their blue moods are just passing the buck.

5. A good way to shake the blues is to get in your car and drive out into the country.

6. When you're down in the dumps, it's normal to resist the efforts of others to help.

7. Most depressions cure themselves and are no cause for alarm.

8. If you suffer persistent depression, try tranquilizers.

9. Music will often dispel a case of the blues quickly.

ANSWERS

1. False. One study of the day-to-day feelings of a cross section of Americans has shown that the majority felt "in good spirits" slightly more than half the time, "neutral" or "so-so" less than a third of the time, and depressed or emotionally "up tight" about one-sixth of the time.

2. True. Psychological tests show that depression slows our mental-reaction time, making it far more difficult to solve problems or do any kind of work which requires clear thinking.

3. False. It's possible, but it's not likely. University of California studies show that one of the chief factors responsible for frequent depression in many people is simply not getting enough sleep. Poor eating habits also are known to cause depression.

4. False. Studies at Columbia University and elsewhere have shown that the weather has a pronounced effect on our emotions. Gloomy, overcast days make people much more subject to depression. That's why many are more depressed during winter.

5. False. When you're feeling really blue, it's a bad policy to get in your car and drive anywhere. A dejected mood slows your reaction time and impairs your ability to judge distance correctly.

6. True. The reason people often resist attempts to snap them out of a spell of the blues, psychiatrists point out, is because everyone has a "need" to feel this way. And if these feelings are denied expression, we are more likely to resent it unconsciously.

7. True. Medical studies show that most depressions are the garden-variety type that cure themselves after running their course. But if depression persists and the symptoms are severe, a specialist should be consulted.

8. False. Under certain conditions, physicians find various drugs effective in alleviating depressions, but the practice of taking any type of antidepressant drug, except when prescribed by a qualified physician, should be avoided, for many such drugs can cause depression to worsen. Also, both stimulant and tranquilizing drugs may have a multitude of undesired side effects.

9. True. But it must be the right kind of music. Studies at a leading university have shown that music with a fast, snappy rhythm can often do wonders to snap a person out of a melancholy mood.

Learn the Secrets of Bowling Strikes!
Hike Your Average 30 . . . 50 . . . 100 Points a Game!

FIND OUT how the experts do it in this big 125-page "Champion's Guide to Bowling." Brings you valuable tips on how to improve your approach . . . how to release ball smoothly . . . how to follow through so you get maximum "wood" every time!

Here is "Mr. Bowling," himself, showing you the simple, effective ways to improve your game.

Dick Weber now ranks as one of bowling's all-time greats. He has twice been named "Bowler of the Year." In two successive years he won the National All Star Tournament, bowling's toughest tournament test. Three times he has shared the national doubles.

Now Dick Weber reveals the inside secrets that have made him a champion bowler. He explains how any bowler, with a little knowledge of the game, and a desire to improve, can learn to throw consistent strikes and spares, and bring his average up to and over 200.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR BOWLING SKILLS

Dick tells you about various grips that let you control your ball more effectively. Explains how to make your approach so you get full body action. Gives you simple counts to follow that help you time your delivery, and makes your release smoother and more powerful.

He shows you how to hook your ball, and how to make it roll perfectly straight. Tells you what the advantages are of throwing a "heavy" ball, versus one with lots of "mix." Suggests how to correct natural tendencies in your delivery that may be throwing you off your game.

Most important, he gives you professional tips on targeting. Points out the exact spots to aim for when shooting for a strike. And what adjustments to make on your second ball to make sure of picking up spares.

Everything is here that will help you realize your maximum bowling potential. Dick Weber knows what will, and will not, help you improve your game. He pinpoints the common mistakes most beginners make, and shows you how to quickly correct them. One full section of his book (19 pages) is devoted solely to bowling problems. In it, he shows you how to guard against "drifting," "chopped pins," "dumping the ball," "light hits," and other bowling maladies that can keep you from bowling your best game.

SCORES OF PROFESSIONAL TIPS TO IMPROVE YOUR GAME:

- Learn how the position of your elbow can eliminate "sidearming."
- Find out how a small body adjustment can help you aim your ball with greater accuracy.
- Learn how to check to see that your approach hasn't varied during a game.
- Discover how a change in delivery can keep you from getting splits.
- Learn how to use angling to pick up easy spares.
- Learn the secrets of how to throw a fastball.

Delicious Dairy Desserts

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ The lovely month of June is a fitting time for paying tribute to dairy products. Fresh milk, cream, buttermilk, sour cream, butter, cottage cheese, other cheeses, and ice cream are always available. Consume any of these foods as is, or use them in combination with other ingredients for meals and snacks. Here are recipes for favorite dairy desserts.

Coffee Peach Ice Cream Loaf

- 2 slices coffee ice cream (⅓ half-gallon each)
- 1 slice vanilla ice cream (⅓ half-gallon)
- 1⅓ cups vanilla wafer crumbs (about 30 cookies)
- ⅔ cup toasted slivered almonds
- Peach Sauce (see recipe)

1. Place slices of ice cream (be sure they are the same size) on a tray and set in the freezer.

2. Meanwhile, mix cookie crumbs with almonds; set aside.

3. When ready to assemble loaf, see photo. Spread and press ¾ cup crumbs onto one slice each of coffee and vanilla ice cream. Alternate layers ending with second coffee layer. Top with remaining crumbs. Wrap in aluminum foil and return to freezer until ready to serve.

4. Unwrap loaf and place on a chilled plate. Spoon some of the Peach Sauce over ice cream and serve with remaining sauce. 12 servings

Peach Sauce

- 1 can (1 lb. 1 oz.) sliced peaches, drained, and peaches cut in pieces
- Reserved peach syrup
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ¾ cup orange juice
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- ¼ cup toasted slivered almonds
- 1½ teaspoons rum extract

1. If necessary, add water to peach syrup to make 1 cup.

2. Blend in a saucepan the cornstarch and orange juice, then mix in peach syrup and fruit peels. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens; cook 2 min. longer.

3. Remove from heat and cool to room temperature. Mix in peaches, almonds, and extract. About 2⅔ cups sauce

Chocolate Brown Sugar Cake

- 2¼ cups sifted cake flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1½ cups lightly packed dark brown sugar
- 3 eggs
- 3 sq. (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled
- 1 cup buttermilk
- Buttermilk Fudge Frosting

1. Grease bottoms of two 9-in. round layer cake pans; line with waxed paper cut to fit bottom of pan; grease paper. Set aside.

2. Sift the cake flour, baking soda, and salt together; set aside.

3. Cream the butter and extract. Gradually add the sugar, creaming thoroughly. Add eggs, one at a time, beating until light and fluffy after each addition. Mix in the chocolate.

4. Alternately add dry ingredients in thirds and buttermilk in halves to creamed mixture, beating only until blended after each addition. Turn into pans; spread evenly.

5. Bake at 350°F. 30 min. or until cake tests done. Cool 10 min. in pans. Remove cake from pans to wire racks to cool completely. Fill and frost. One 9-in. cake

Buttermilk Fudge Frosting

- ¾ cup butter
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

1. Put the first four ingredients into a heavy 3-qt. saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is completely dissolved.

2. Increase heat and bring mixture to boiling. Put candy thermometer in place. Cook, stirring constantly, until thermometer registers 232°F.

3. Remove from heat and put the 2 tablespoons butter on top of frosting. Set aside to cool to 110°F. Do not disturb during cooling.

4. When cool, stir in extract and beat until creamy and of spreading consistency. If frosting becomes too thick to spread smoothly, mix in a few drops of hot water.

Enough to fill and frost a 9-in. layer cake

Cottage Cheese Fluff

- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. In a small bowl, whip cottage cheese. Mix in a blend of sugar and cinnamon, then lemon peel and juice.

2. Set on a serving tray with cuts of assorted cheeses and fruits, such as melon, red plums, pears, and grapes. About 1 cup fluff

Chocolate Custard

- 1 cup (6-oz. pkg.) semisweet chocolate pieces
- 3 tablespoons cream
- 3 cups milk
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- ⅓ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt

1. Melt ⅔ cup of the chocolate with the cream in top of a double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until smooth; spoon about 1 tablespoon into each of 8 custard cups or 10 soufflé dishes. Spread evenly. Put cups into a shallow pan; set aside.

2. Scald milk. Melt remaining ⅓ cup chocolate and, adding gradually, stir in scalded milk until blended.

3. Beat eggs, extract, sugar, and salt together. Gradually add milk mixture, stirring constantly. Pour into chocolate-lined cups.

4. Set pan with filled cups on oven rack and pour boiling water into pan to a depth of 1 in.

5. Bake at 325°F. about 25 min. or until a knife inserted halfway between center and edge of custard comes out clean.

6. Set cups on wire rack to cool slightly. Refrigerate and serve when thoroughly cooled. Unmold if desired. Garnish with whipped cream rosettes. 8 to 10 servings

Cottage Cheese Melon Dessert Élégante

- Syrup drained from melon balls
- 2 pkgs. (16 oz. each) frozen melon balls, thawed, drained, and chopped
- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) lemon-flavored gelatin
- 2 lbs. large curd creamed cottage cheese, sieved
- 2 cups chilled heavy cream, whipped to soft peaks
- 1 cup zwieback crumbs
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ cup finely chopped nuts
- ¼ cup butter, melted
- ½ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg

1. Bring the syrup to boiling; pour over gelatin in a bowl, and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool.

2. Stir in 3 cups of the cottage cheese and then the melon; fold in whipped cream. Turn into a 9-in. tubed pan rinsed in cold water.

3. Mix crumbs, ¼ cup of the sugar, and nuts; blend in melted butter. Sprinkle evenly over top and press gently. Chill 6 to 8 hrs.

4. Unmold (crumb side will be down).

5. Mix the remaining cottage cheese with a blend of the sugar and nutmeg. Using a pastry bag and star tube, decorate as desired with the flavored cheese. 24 servings

Strawberry Jewel Dessert

- 2 pkgs. (6 oz. each) strawberry-flavored gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 3 cups cold water
- 2 cups sliced strawberries
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ cup chopped pecans
- 1 cup dairy sour cream

1. Pour boiling water over gelatin in a bowl and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Mix in cold water. Chill until partially set, stirring often.

2. Toss berries with sugar, and fold with nuts into 2 cups of gelatin; turn into a 9-cup tube mold. Refrigerate until just set, but not firm.

3. To remaining gelatin, add sour cream; whip until foamy. Spoon over layer in mold. Chill about 4 hrs.

4. Unmold. Garnish with whole berries. Fill center with dairy sour cream. 12 to 16 servings

These dairy desserts of distinction include Strawberry Jewel Dessert, Coffee Peach Ice Cream Loaf, and Cottage Cheese on cheese-fruit tray, with milk. ▶

CHERYL MILLER:

She's Happy About Her "Bad Luck"

SHE GOT married on Friday the 13th (last December), broke her ankle in three places two days later (skiing), and was told her tv show ("Daktari") had been cancelled after four years.

But don't feel sorry for Cheryl Miller. She doesn't. "I literally worked all my life," she told me. "I need rest."

When Cheryl said "all her life," it wasn't just a figure of speech. "I got my social security card when I was 17 days old and had my first day in front of the cameras two days later. For five days I played the little baby boy in 'Casanova Brown,' who was swapped back and forth between Gary Cooper and Teresa Wright. When I was 28 days old, I went into 'Marriage Is a Private Affair.' I haven't stopped working since."

Cheryl—a lifetime of film work.

Not that her family had a theatrical background. Her father is an architect, and her mother used to work in the accounting department of Sears. It was a matter of circumstance. At the time of her birth (she is one of five children), her family was going through financial difficulties. Because her mother had trouble in the delivery, she had to stay in the hospital longer than expected. That meant they needed a nurse to look after Cheryl, a financial hardship the family could ill afford.

By chance, a movie company was looking for a baby who wouldn't cry a lot, and after they'd gone to half the hospitals in Los Angeles, they found Cheryl.

"Because I was a very passive baby, they asked my mother for permission to use me. She didn't mind because, in addition to furnishing a nurse, they also supplied a chauffeured car for me."

In spite of her constant involvement in show business, Cheryl led a remarkably normal life. She divided her free time among pet animals—including hamsters, white rats, lizards, chameleons, and a jarful of black widow spiders—studying the guitar and piano and eventually earning a B.A. and later an M.A. in music at UCLA.

She has worked hard all her life and now is married, so Cheryl's ambition in show business has diminished. The girl who once wanted to become a choral director in a church today considers her primary function in life to be a good wife, a competent homemaker, and eventually, mother.

Today her favorite leisure-time activity is skiing. She hopes to capitalize on it soon when she and her husband take groups of tourists to the Swiss Alps. The fact that her husband Stanley Shapiro, a stockbroker, also happens to be an expert skier didn't hurt their romance at all.

"I met Stanley through our next-door neighbor. He was going steady at the time, and I was, too, but we kept running into each other at our neighbor's place, and soon he stopped seeing his girl, and I stopped seeing my fellow. And there you are."

She was in a state of shock about the "Daktari" cancellation when she fell down a flight of stairs, dislocated her shoulder, and broke two ribs. "It was at that point that Stanley decided we should get married. He said I couldn't go around being helpless, that I had to have someone to look after me. And now I'm glad it all turned out that way."

So you see, there's no need to feel sorry for Cheryl. Or, I suspect, "look after her."

Chooz. The only chewing gum antacid.

Now...Denture Invention

For people with both "uppers" and "lowers"

The big difference between natural teeth and dentures is in performance. Natural teeth are held solidly in place by living connective tissue. Without connective tissue, even the most expensive dentures may slip and rock. Gums often get raw and sore. Constant rubbing may cause serious bone damage. Eating can be slow, painful. You speak less clearly. You dare not laugh for fear of dentures dropping.

Now chemists have developed an artificial connective membrane – FIXODENT. It connects dentures with gums and mouth surfaces. It is incredibly effective for both uppers and lowers.

FIXODENT's elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing –helps protect gums from bruising and irritation. You eat faster–bite harder, without pain–enjoy your food more. Eat hard-to-chew foods–steaks, fruits–prevent "denture malnutrition," a problem of older people.

FIXODENT helps you speak easier, faster, more clearly. When dentures slip you hold them in place with tongue and cheek muscles that ache. FIXODENT helps prevent strain.

The special pencil-point dispenser spots FIXODENT with precision – no oozing over. Often lasts 'round-the-clock. It even resists hot drinks. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get special FIXODENT at all drug counters.

THOSE HORRID

AGE SPOTS*

FADE THEM OUT

*Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Fade them away with ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses of pigment on the skin, helps make hands look white and young again. Equally effective on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts in the skin—not on it. Fragrant, greaseless base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. If you have these age-revealing brown spots, blotches, or if you want clearer, lighter skin, use ESOTERICA. At your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00.

Countless Wonders

1000 Island Bridge affords panoramic view.

BOLDT CASTLE on Heart Island is a $2-million monument to love. It is located among the Thousand Islands on the St. Lawrence River between New York State and Ontario.

George Boldt, a poor boy, came to the U.S. at the turn of the century. He became owner of New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Then he married, and for his bride he bought an island, reshaped it into a heart, and started building a castle. Mrs. Boldt died; work on the castle ceased, and the grieving husband fled the island and never returned.

The incompleted castle, on which $2 million had been spent, is the Thousand Islands' No. 1 tourist attraction. To its empty, marble halls each year come thousands of visitors at 60 cents a head.

The Thousand Islands, shared by the U.S. and Canada, actually number 1,780. An old-timer was heard to say, "I reckon that whoever named them got tired counting." Called Manitoanna by the Indians (meaning Garden Place of the Great Spirit), they stretch 50 miles from Cape Vincent, N.Y., in the west, to Brockville, Ontario, in the east.

"Just Room Enough," owned by a minister, is one of the smallest islands. It has a cottage, a tree by the door, and a place to tie up a rowboat. The reverend can fish from his kitchen window.

Wellesley, one of the largest, supports a state park with swimming and camping facilities, a luxury hotel with an 18-hole golf course, bridle paths, a boathouse, and a landing field. Most of the islands are privately owned, but for the man who wants to get away from it all and has the price, there are still islands for sale.

To get to Canada, the visitor crosses the Thousand Islands International Bridge between Collins Landing, N.Y., and Ivy Lea, Ontario. More than a million automobiles, mostly with tourists, roll over this 8½-mile-long skyway every year. From this scenic span, they can enjoy a breathtaking view of at least 200 of the islands. Fare—$1 one way; $1.50—roundtrip.

The Thousand Islands are a versatile tourist playground, with the deep-blue St. Lawrence a lively arena buzzing with activity. There are fishing and boating, sailing and water skiing, boat tours at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children, moonlight cruises, and picnicking along the river's public beaches, and community pools. Golf courses abound.

There also are exciting boat and canoe races, fishing tournaments, swimming meets, and water-ski competitions. And when the city fathers run out of ideas, they invent new ones—such as raft racing. Anyone who can put together a contraption that floats and costs no more than $5 is eligible to enter.

In New York State and Ontario, the fishing season for pike and pickerel opens in May, and for black bass and muskellunge, in June. Nonresident license fees in the state are $4.25 for six days and $5.50 for the year; in Ontario, $4 for three days and $8.50 for the year. Fishing boats rent for about $5.50 per day with weekly rates starting at $17.50. Daily rates for guides are about $35.

Communities in the Thousand Islands try to outdo one another in staging special events and other forms of entertainment to please the tourists. Some are: International Highland Games between Alexandria Bay and Clayton, Aug. 3; Antique Boat Show, Aug. 17 at Clayton, displaying everything from birchbark canoes to steam vessels; Centennial at Watertown; Pirates Weekend, Sept. 8-10, when a crew of cutlass-swinging buccaneers from King-

Boldt Castle on Heart Island lures tourists.

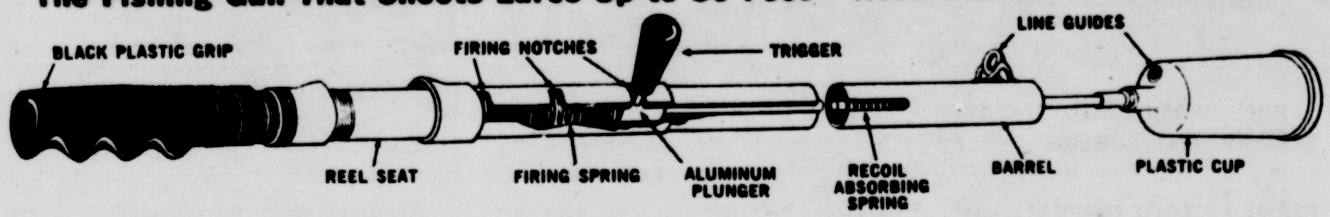
WHAT ROD DOES FOR YOU

- Catch More Kinds of Fish
- Find Fish Faster! Outcast, Outfish, Out Catch Your Fishing Pals
- End Casting Embarrassment From Crowded Boats, Piers, Canopies
- Catch Bigger Fish ■ Catch More Fish

AMAZING AUTOCAST

The Fishing Gun That Shoots Lures Up to 80 Feet — WITH DEADLY PRECISION.



AUTOCAST CASTS ANY LURE OR LIVE BAIT FROM ¼ OZ. TO ½ OZ. WITH PINPOINT ACCURACY AND SAFETY EVEN FROM CROWDED BOATS OR DOCKS.

FROM WHITESBURG, TENNESSEE COMES NEWS of the world's most accurate lure caster — the astonishing fishing rod that shoots lures like a gun with pinpoint accuracy up to eighty feet —

A beautifully-made lure-casting instrument that saves you years of casting training — saves you the endless expense of buying high-cost rods, reels, and more and more lures designed to catch you instead of the fish — lets you cover the water faster, find fish quicker, make your fishing trips more fun, more exciting and lets you enjoy every minute you're fishing from dawn to dusk with more and bigger catches.

NOW, FOR THE FIRST TIME, BE ABLE TO CAST WHERE THE BIG ONES ARE WITH AMAZING PINPOINT ACCURACY

We guarantee the AUTOCAST fishing rod will cast with pinpoint accuracy distances up to eighty feet or there is no cost to you. For the first time, be able to cast where no one else can, where the big ones lurk.

AN ENGINEER'S INVENTION

The secret is a scientific spring action casting mechanism developed by a Tennessee Sportsman-Engineer. Called AUTOCAST this wonder-working fishing rod is the result of years of testing the most effective way of automatically casting lures to attract fish — and watching the fish react to each cast underneath the water. From these studies came AUTOCAST — the fishing rod that shoots like a gun. AUTOCASTS are now used by fishermen in 28 countries from the U.S. to Australia.

FORGET BACK CASTING FOREVER

Now, it is no longer necessary to go through the awkward motions of fish casting. The new AUTOCAST eliminates any danger from backcast, even on crowded boats or docks. The reason is simple: AUTOCAST casts automatically at the simple pushing of a button. The lure goes where you aim the rod, not into some child's eye or ear.

Fish just can't resist AUTOCAST when it propels a favorite bait or lure into their favorite lolling spot.

If you ever felt embarrassed about your awkward casting, forget that embarrassment and step into the space-age glamour of AUTOCAST. All that is necessary to cast AUTOCAST is to cock it, aim the rod and pull the trigger. You can cast from boat or shore with equal sureness. You can safely cast in the thickest weeds, or deep brush, heaviest shore line shrubbery. You can go after and come back with large mouth bass, pike, pickerel, perch, bream, trout, walleye, salmon, red tuna, striped bass, blue fish, weak fish and do it time and time again without any previous experience.

MARVEL OF DESIGN

AUTOCAST is not a gadget or toy. It is a rugged, precision casting instrument constructed of fiberglass and aluminum. It's the first new idea in fishing rods in twenty years. It combines astonishing simplicity with deadly accuracy and is the world's most accurate caster. There's no back lash, no back swing problem, no line twist. It works with lures or live bait, with any standard spinning reel, in any kind of water.

AMAZING TRIAL OFFER

Try Amazing AUTOCAST — the fishing rod shoots like a gun — without risking a penny.

All you have to do is mail in the no-risk trial coupon below. When you receive your AUTOCAST rod, use it anywhere you like — test its fantastic casting powers yourself.

See for yourself how AUTOCAST works with any standard spin-casting reel with any lure or live bait ¼ to ½ oz. in any water for whatever kind of fish. See how easily it casts — how it works in weeds, brush, tree-lined shores, from crowded boats, piers, and canopies.

Use AUTOCAST to catch bass, trout, perch, pickerel, pike, walleyes — any sport or pan fish you like to catch.

Let your children, your wife, and your friends fish with AUTOCAST. Put AUTOCAST to every test. If you don't agree that it's the easiest, most accurate casting rod in the world, it won't cost you a penny.

What The Press Reports on AUTOCAST

POPULAR SCIENCE Reported: "At last an automatic caster that eliminates hooking your fishing partner or losing your lure in overhanging limbs or in the middle of a back cast. Just set the distance on a scale and press a trigger. Autocast fires line and bait accurately up to 80 feet."

NEWSWEEK Reported: "The trigger is tripped. Voom . . . the released spring catapults the line up to 80 feet accurately under overhanging limbs and brush, past tree stumps and other obstacles."

AMERICAN LEGION Reported: "AUTOCAST great for kids and beginners, for experienced anglers, possibly even for semi invalids."

ARGOSY MAGAZINE recommended AUTOCAST and especially for youngsters.

PARADE MAGAZINE Reported: "Even an inexperienced youngster in your family can toss a line where he wants it after a few minutes practice."

THE FORT WORTH PRESS Reported: "AUTOCAST looks like a bazooka — actually it casts a lure — it's a show stopper — wherever it's used a crowd always gathers."

THE PITTSBURGH POST GAZETTE Reported: "AUTOCAST a Bonanza for the lazy angler — an automatic casting rod that needs no casting — just aim it, push a button and watch a lure shoot across the water to the spot — point the rod to your target and just push the trigger back.

THE ANGLER'S DIGEST Reported: "Easily pops a ¼ oz. plug into a bucket three times out of four at 30 yards."

Medical World News considered AUTOCAST so relaxing for doctors they reported on it in detail.

Outgrow Bedwetting... When?

HALF the children wetting the bed at age 5 will still be wetting at age 11 . . . or older!

Walter C. Alvarez, M.D., Professor Emeritus of the Mayo Clinic, says: Bedwetting ". . . is hard on the unhappy child, and on the mother . . . even if his parents do not scold him, he cannot help feeling that he is a terrible nuisance and a disgrace to the family."

The late Joseph G. Molner, M.D., Master of Public Health, who was a widely syndicated newspaper columnist, fully researched our program and stated: "Pacific International Ltd. does a better job of ending bedwetting problems than anyone else."

For over 18 years Pacific International — the largest organization of its kind in the world — has helped solve the problem of chronic bedwetting for tens of thousands from ages 4 to 57. We can help your child, too, provided bedwetting is not caused by organic defect or disease.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS
AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

Sensational GROUND COVERS!

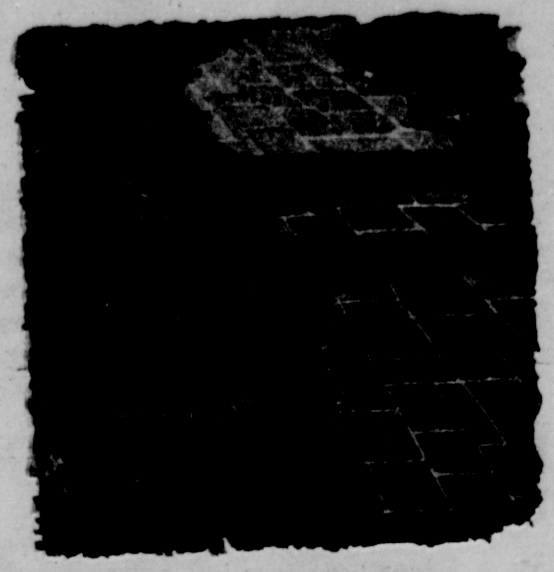
Easy-To-Plant, Easy-To-Grow . . . Become More Beautiful Every Year!

Masses of color early in the SPRING!

CREEPING PHLOX

3 for only $1.00 (8 for $2.00) (20 for $4.00)

Can you imagine a sight more lovely than dwarf masses of glowing color appearing in early spring? Creeping Phlox makes a sight this lovely. Perfectly rounded balls of color growing only 4 inches tall. And Creeping Phlox have three wonderful advantages. First, they stay green the year round. Secondly, they are masses of color in the early spring when few other things are in bloom. Third, they are wonderful for ground covers and borders. Grow in part shade or full sun. Rich color assortment of our choice: Rosy red, steel blue, pure white, pearl pink. You receive strong northern grown field divisions. Now is the time to plant so order TODAY. SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay $1.00 for 3 plants, $2.00 for 8 plants or $4.00 for 20 plants, plus C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return the shipping label for refund of purchase price . . . you keep the plants.



CREEPING RED SEDUM

(Sedum Spurium, Dragon's Blood)

An Extraordinary ground cover for masses of summer flowers . . . evergreen winter foliage!

4 for $1.00 (8 for $1.75) (12 for $2.50)

Rock gardens, borders, edging, under shady trees, and steep banks will be alive with carefree color when you plant this Creeping Red Sedum. Just place these hardy, northern nursery grown plants about one foot apart and watch them take over! Fill troublesome areas with a neat 3-4" tall cover that spreads fast, yet doesn't need pruning. Depend on it for bright red, star-like flowers from June through September — attractive, thick, semi-evergreen foliage the rest of the year, even in sub-zero weather! SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay postman $1.00 for 4, $1.75 for 8 or $2.50 for 12, plus C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.

GROWS AND SPREADS WITHOUT SPECIAL CARE. IN SUN OR SHADE, EVEN IN POOR SOIL!

PLANT NOW — GROWS DURING WINTER!

THIS THICK, BLUE-GREEN SPREADING EVERGREEN

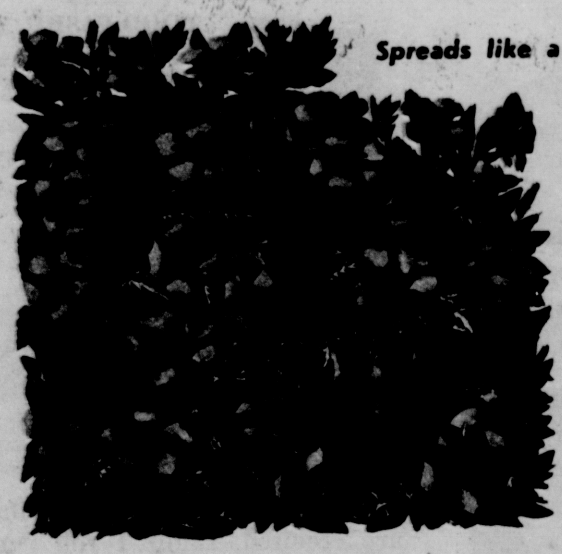
Spreads like mad to cover bare areas, steep banks and other tough spots!

SPREADING EVERGREEN

$2.00 each

(3 for $4.00)
(6 for $7.00)
(12 for $13.00)

Now, with this Evergreen Carpet (Juniperus horizontalis procumben), see one plant grow over ugly bare spots, even in poor soil, to cover 4 to 6' with a lovely, thick carpet of green that lasts 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR. NEVER GETS MORE THAN 5 TO 10" TALL! Instead, this hardy, drought-resistant plant uses its energy to grow horizontally. Does just fine in well-drained areas — even where sand and rocks prevail, in sun or partial shade! BEAUTIFUL WAY TO COVER "EYESORES." And it stays fresh and green year around, without getting that dull "winter look". Start it on trouble spots now. Plant about 4' apart — six plants will cover 24 to 36'. You get hardy plants from 3" pots. SEND NO MONEY. On delivery pay $2.00 for one, $4.00 for three, $7.00 for six or $13.00 for twelve, plus postage and C.O.D. charges. We pay postage on prepaid orders. If not 100% satisfied, just return shipping label for refund of purchase price — you keep the plants.



Spreads like a green carpet with Blue Flowers!

PERIWINKLE

- STAYS GREEN ALL YEAR
- BLUE FLOWERS IN SPRING
- NEEDS NO SPECIAL CARE

10 for $1.00 (25 for $1.98) (50 for $2.98) (100 for $4.98)

Now, for shady areas beneath shrubs and in other dim places, even where grass won't grow, you can have a 12-month carpet of thick, abundant, evergreen Periwinkle (Vinca minor). And every spring, in May, shade-happy Periwinkle gives you a wide profusion of beautiful lavender-blue flowers that make the dullest part of the yard look like a showcase! And it grows so vigorously, you can put Periwinkle in poor, stony soil, on steep banks, in rock gardens — practically anywhere. Does better in shade than grass — but likes sun, too. Spreads and spreads; one plant grows to fill two square feet; (for quicker, denser effect plant one foot apart): gets 4-6" tall — all without special care. You get healthy, nicely rooted plants, ready for easy transplanting.

AMAZING BONUS OFFER!

'Suppose They Gave A War And Nobody Came'

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(N E A)—For Tony Curtis, the end of taboos has been the beginning of better things.

We sat in his dressing room between shots on his new film, "Suppose They Gave a War and Nobody Came." And Tony, who is one of Hollywood's best talkers, talked about the way the film business has been changing lately.

"There are better parts around now," he said, "and that's because of the change in the philosophy of filmmaking.

"Motion pictures always used to reflect Christian morality. That was the basis of what you could do and what you couldn't do. But that's all changed now. They don't adhere to Christian morality any more.

"Now there are no more taboos."

Curtis says that anything goes today. In our talk, he wasn't discussing the right and wrong of this change, but simply that it exists, and what it means to him, as an actor.

"Today," he said, "when I get a script offered, there is usually an interesting character to start with. That's essential to an actor, an interesting character.

"I have an interesting character to play in this movie, and I have one in my next, 'The Dubious Patriot,' which will be shot in Turkey."

In "Suppose They Gave a War and Nobody Came," he's playing an old Army man. Brian Keith and Ivan Dixon are his buddies. It's a story — obviously, from the title, an antiwar story—about three old soldiers and their conflict with the new Army.

The set was a working bar and grill somewhere in the South. It was called The Hula Hut, and the waitresses, in keeping with the name of the joint, were in modified muumuus, mini-skirted version.

The script doesn't mention the location of The Hula Hut. Don McGuire, who wrote it, had specified Mississippi, but Fred Engel, the producer, dropped that reference.

"If it was my picture," McGuire growled, "I'd damn well call it Mississippi."

He went over to a display behind the bar and ripped off a package of pepperoni and began gnawing on a strip of the stuff.

"A writer should never be on the set," he said. "It's too traumatic."

Between takes, the extras —soldiers, girls, civilians— hung around the bar as though it were Saturday night in East Gingersnap. They played the pinball machine and the juke box and there was much laughter and conversation, until the assistant director quieted them down.

That gave director Hy Averback a chance to tell me his conception of the story.

"This," he said, "is a story of men out of time—middle-aged men who are still in the Army. It's a comedy, but it has something to say."

Fred Engel, a cherubic-faced man, said that the title was taken from the bumper sticker of the same name. It is probably the most popular bumper sticker on the West Coast, but Engel says it isn't as well-known around the country.

Engel says he put his own money into developing the story and McGuire's script.

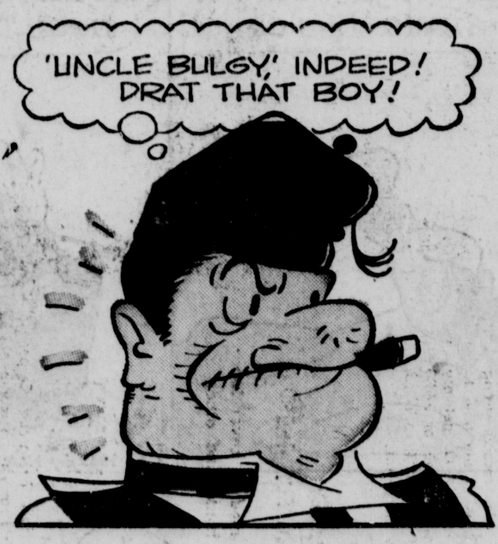
OUR BOARDING HOUSE

by Bill Freyse



See Me Now!

Billy Gibson was doomed as a "hopeless case" until a doctor with "magic" glasses opened a new world to him—a world of vision faithful boy, he surely is deserving of this."

One of our friends choked up: "Your Dr. Feinbloom must be wonderful, but I know God helped." Even people I met in the grocery store next day squeezed my hand and said: "Is it really true? Could anything so marvelous happen to Bill!"

And our son couldn't stop marveling. At a football game with his father one Saturday, he stood up to sing the Star-Spangled Banner. With gusto he sang, "O, say can you see . . ." and his smile spread from ear to ear.

Today, wearing his glasses, Billy has at least 70 percent of normal vision for closeness, and 12 to 15 percent for distance. That may seem very little to most people, but to Billy it's tremendous.

"In two or three years," Dr. Feinbloom assured us, "he will have 30 percent normal distance vision. For near-vision, he will be able to read as well and as long as you or I."

Billy used to watch sports on television with his nose to the screen; now he can sit back a short distance and really enjoy it. An avid sports fan, he is captain of his school's wrestling team, goes to practice almost every evening, and engages in wrestling matches with teams of other schools.

After completing his mobility training (with a cane), Billy is now able to catch any bus in our city or walk to any area. At times, for safety, he may still need his cane in heavy traffic. The glasses give him the extra vision to move about with a longer, steadier stride. His eyes do seem to be growing stronger.

Like any normal teen-ager, Billy is dating and goes to school dances and parties. "Girls are great," he says. "The glasses have not changed my feelings about them in the least. All I need is more time for dating."

He puts in a long day. At 5:30 in the morning he is up and at his studies. By 7:20, driven in a car pool with other students, he is at our church seminary for religious instruction. By 8 he's at school .

We can hardly believe it, but this September Billy will leave the School for the Blind and enter Ogden High School as a junior! Billy feels confident he'll be able to walk the seven blocks from our home to the high school without a cane. This summer he'll be trying it out.

Among the adjustment problems Billy faces is spelling. Accustomed to Braille with its many contractions of words, "sighted" spelling has been tough for him. But I'm sure that reading print will help him improve his spelling a great deal. In math, his print-reading teacher is showing him how to do problems on the blackboard. As for reading, at present he sees five or six letters at a time; with more experience, reading will become much easier. "To me," Billy says, "print is very much like learning a foreign language."

This fall, at his new school, Billy will be taking English, social law, U.S. history, creative writing, physiology, debating, and health. He plans to go on to the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, where he'll major in political science and minor in radio broadcasting. Why broadcasting? Billy has spent many happy hours in the press box with sports announcers.

His three pairs of wonderful glasses are treasured like gems. He never cleans them with water and is even concerned about wearing them when it rains. He's also worried about scratches, although he uses those glasses for all his activities but wrestling.

When I look at my son these days, I feel we've been specially blessed. After all, we are average Americans. My husband is a telephone repairman, and I am a working mother, holding down my job at the Internal Revenue Service. Yet I found we needn't be the only fortunate family. Last Christmas, a heartwarming thing happened.

Typing comes easier to Billy now that he can see what he is doing.

It's great also to see the billiard balls. He plays often with his dad.

"Seeing is believing," Billy tells Mom. "I'm out of the twilight zone."

When the people I work with at IRS heard of Billy's "miracle," they decided to make it also possible for one of his friends, Rick Mansfield, a 15-year-old with limited vision.

Special boxes in our cafeterias were marked "Project Ricky." Employees dropped quarters or more into them "to help Ricky see the beauties of life we all take so easily for granted."

Enough funds were collected to get Rick a pair of microscopic glasses through a local optometrist cooperating with their inventor, Dr. Feinbloom. Rick had his "seeing-aids" just before Christmas, in time to read the tiny print on his new record albums and to read the dial on his new radio.

How many near-blind people like Rick and Billy can hope to benefit from those ingenious seeing aids? When Dr. Feinbloom came to Ogden recently to conduct a clinic and to lecture before other optometrists, I asked him about it.

"Of the million Americans who are legally blind," he said, "about 100,000 to 200,000 are children suffering from congenital abnormalities or partial blindness due to accident or disease. I believe a substantial number of those now in schools for the blind can attain improved vision through our corrective lenses.

"The type of improvement achieved with Billy is possible in most of these cases. The degree of improvement depends mostly on the percentage of vision remaining and, of course, the precise nature of the eye condition. We can not help those persons who are totally blind, who have only shadow vision or only the ability to tell light from dark."

Dr. Feinbloom told me he has developed more than 50 different types of optical systems. These may be applied to persons of all ages who have lost their vision as a result of eye diseases, nonoperable cataracts, or other congenital conditions.

"Of these cases," he pointed out, "three out of four can be rehabilitated to an extent sufficient to enable them to live more useful lives."

For our son, living a more useful life means he has emerged from a twilight zone into a world he barely knew before. Yesterday, for instance, he and his classmates spent the afternoon touring our state capitol, as they've done before. When he came home, Billy said, "At the Gold Room, I could see how it got its name—I could see the gold!"

Last night, standing outside Billy's room, I listened to him read aloud from "Stories from Mexico." I asked myself, Could this possibly be our Billy? God—and Dr. Feinbloom—must have listened to our many silent prayers. ◆ of the Thousand Islands

vacation spot has something for everybody By HAROLD M. FARKAS

ston, Ontario, aboard two brigantines, will bombard and invade Alexandria Bay on the other side of the St. Lawrence.

Other tourist attractions are the zoo in Brockville; St. Lawrence Summer Playhouse, Gananoque; Children Never-Never Land at Sky Deck Tower, Hill Island; War of 1812 Battlefields, Sackets Harbor; Old Fort Henry with a scarlet-uniformed drill team and goat mascot, Kingston; Fisheries Research Station, and Tibbetts Lighthouse, Cape Vincent.

The tourist has a wide selection of accommodations to choose from. There are luxury hotels and motels from $7 to $30 a day, and others more moderately priced; rooms for rent in tourist homes; housekeeping cottages that rent for around $75 a week; houseboats that sleep up to eight for $325 a week.

Campers at state or provincial trailer parks pay $1.75 a day, including use of electrical outlets.

"Just Room Enough," one of the small islands, has everything for vacationing.

The Thousand Islands are within a day's driving distance for some 96 million persons in the U.S. and Canada. About 85 percent of the tourists come by automobile. Others take buses and planes to Watertown, N.Y., and taxi or hire a car for the 25-mile ride from there to the Islands.

Even prayer is attractive to people visiting the Thousand Islands. There are many churches, but one in particular is popular among visitors of all faiths, the Interdenominational Church held under the skies at Half-Moon Bay, near Gananoque.

It's no gimmick. It's been going on for some 60 years. ◆
